GERMAN EMPEROR READY TO QUIT UNDER CERTAIN CONDITIONS

Would Not Agree to Give Up Any Territorial Possessions

GREATEST ARTILLERY DUEL IN HISTORY

Eight Army Corps, Formerly Sent Into East Prussia and Galicia to Repel Russian Attacks, Have Been Ordered to Proceed to France and Join the Kaiser's Troops Now Defending Their Stand Along the Marne and Aisne Rivers—Great Battle Between the Two Armies Continues With Unabated Vigor—Germans Being Slowly Driven From New Line—Conflict Rages Over a Front of 110 Miles.

(By International News Service.)
Berlin, via Amsterdam, Sept. 17.—Informal diplomatic representations have been made to the kaiser as to whether Germany would accept another offer of mediation by the United States. A reply has been sent to Washington.

The Kaiser's Conditions.
It is semi-officially reported that the kaiser replied that Germany did not seek war and would place no obstacles in the way of peace, but under no circumstance would he enter into negotiations threatening the territorial integrity or commercial resources of the empire.

Rushing to Attack Allies.
Petrograd, Sept. 17.—The war office is informed that the eighth German army corps sent to repel the Russian attack in East Prussia and Galicia have been withdrawn and are being rushed to France to help strengthen the attack on the allies.

Germans Take Offensive.
Paris, Sept. 17.—Heavy reinforcements have reached the German right wing. General von Kluck taking the offensive striking fiercely at the allies' left wing.

Fresh French troops are being rushed to Noyon.

If the battle now in progress goes in favor of the Germans a second advance on Paris will follow, according to a high government official at noon today.

5000 Guns Being Used.
The battle of the Aisne continues. The greatest artillery duel in the history of the world is in progress, five thousand guns being used.

The Germans thus far have been repulsed, the allies attempt to drive them back from the hills along the Aisne.

The allies have gained crossings of the river at three points, under the terrific fire of the German batteries.

Furious Fighting Continues.
The rear-guard engagement upon which the German retreating right wing entered last Monday has developed into what promises to be the decisive battle of the campaign in France.

Fighting proceeded with renewed fury yesterday all along the 110-mile battle front, in which upward of 2,000,000 men are engaged.

Germans on Defensive.
The Germans are fighting strictly on the defensive, battling desperately to prevent the utter rout of their armies. The Germans are being forced back steadily before the allied pressure; but they are fighting with dogged resistance every mile of the way. The advance of the allies is officially described as steady but not rapid.

The Germans have delivered several counter-attacks and have occupied sev-

London, Sept. 17.—Several hundred wounded British troops are now arriving daily in London, and they bring with them highly interesting personal stories of the war. At the railway stations, the wounded are always greeted with cheers and money, flowers and delicacies are showered on them.

"I was at Mons on Monday on the bridge across the canal there, right in the thick of it," said a young infantryman. "It was there that I got this trouble, a bullet in the thigh," he aided pointing to a bandaged limb. "But I got the chap who did it. He went on gaily, and produced a tobacco tin in which, with a few strands of tobacco, was a shrapnel bullet."

"We did not have much shelter where I was," he said. "We just had to do the best we could."

"The fire was frightfully heavy, but you know they cannot shoot for free, and waste an awful lot of ammunition. The artillery are the worst but even they can't shoot. It's numbers that does it—nothing else."

"As soon as we shot one lot down another came up. That's what happened all the time. Their losses must be enormous."

"Shoot!" contemptuously echoed a burly infantryman, whose head was swathed in bandages. "Germans shoot! Why, they could not hit this station at a thousand yards."

An Argyll and Sutherland Highlander with a tremendous Scottish accent held forth from a stretcher to a group of listeners.

"I wonder whether we shall be allowed to stop in hospital here," he said. "I've been chased out of two already. The Germans shelled us in the field hospitals, but they didn't do much damage, you know—artillery don't unless they can shoot, and these couldn't."

"I've been picking up clothes as I came down," he went on, pointing to his shoes and socks. "These are French, and so is this blanket," he said, and was going to give further details when he was picked up and placed in a motor-car.

"Tell you another time—the French have been awfully kind to us," he cried as he was borne off.

"I think a great many of our fellows are only wounded," said a cavalryman. "It does not do to take too much notice of what we hear. We were told out there that the 2nd Dragoons had been cut up, but we came across them, and they had lost very few men."

"The Germans were like a great big battering ram," said another. "They did not seem to mind how many were killed, and sometimes their men were simply thrown away."

"At one place the Germans poured fire down on our guns. It was terrible punishment."

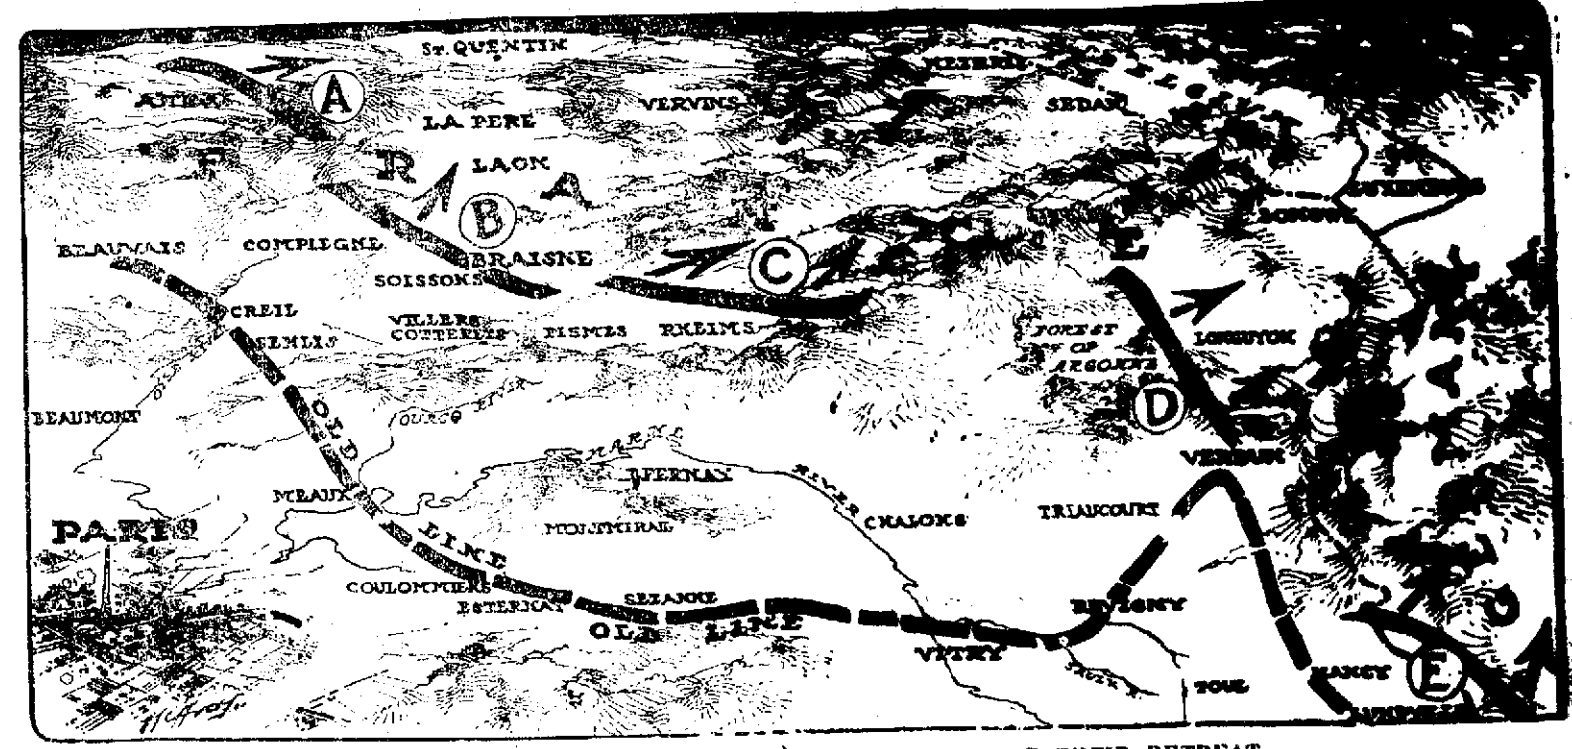

"They have been suffering heavily all along, but the French are chasing them now, and they are getting it in the neck properly."

The first Red Cross train that arrived at Waterloo carried officers. First of all, those who were able to travel.

After a strenuous day of nearly 100 miles in an auto, and making speeches in a dozen towns, Clifford Pinchot, the Washington party candidate for United States senator, reached Dubois last evening, where a mass meeting was held in front of the Commercial hotel.

Mr. Pinchot, with the same snap and vim that has accompanied him throughout all his campaign, spoke to a crowd of good size and was greeted with rounds of applause, when he told them that he was in the right to down the Peorose gang and that he was proud of having been "tired" by Taft for sticking to the right.

Brimbaugh's shifty answer to the North American's offer to support him if he would declare against Peorose and Penroseism, was described by Mr. Pinchot as an "at tempt to create a good impression by saying nothing."

Mr. Pinchot said Brimbaugh will never be elected governor of this state. "We do not want a man as governor who is afraid," he said. Brimbaugh had his last chance to take a square-cut stand on the greatest issue in politics in this state when the North American asked him to make known his attitude on Penroseism.

The freshman class has been limited to 600 owing to the lack of building accommodations, more than 200 applications having been rejected. With the completion of the eight new buildings authorized by the last session of the legislature this restriction will not be necessary.

Fifty new teachers have been added to the faculty, the most prominent being Dr. Raper, of Columbia university, professor of education; Dr. Kains, of Michigan Agricultural college, professor of horticulture; Professor Ernest, of Colorado Teachers' college, professor of industrial art; and Professor Marshall, of Ohio Wesleyan university, professor of public speaking. Albert O. Vorse, of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, has been made College News editor and instructor in journalistic writing.

FIREHOUSE PROBLEM NOT YET SOLVED

One Bid of $3000 Received by Borough Council Last Evening

COMMITTEE TO REDUCE COST

The first business taken up was the report of Engineer E. W. Hess on the sidewalk grade on West Fourth street, where there had been a complaint made by some of the residents of the street in regard to the grading. Mr. Hess reported the grade of the sidewalk alright, but recommended the excavating of the street for 100 feet, starting 15 feet south of the alley near the Joe Chase property, a one-foot cut to be made at the highest point.

The street commissioner reported the cost of street work done in the last five weeks at $554.32.

The borough authorities were authorized to approve the South Second street paving, if the same was found to be satisfactory after being inspected by the borough engineer and the utilities committee.

The finance committee was directed to advertise for bids for the building of the Second and Fourth ward hose houses.

The engineer's grade for the sidewalk and steps on Pine streets were adopted on the recommendation of the utilities committee.

George T. Underwood bid $3000 for the building of each hose house in the Second and Fourth wards. A committee consisting of Burgess Callahan, Messrs. Thorn, Witherow and Wrigley, were appointed to take up the matter with Mr. Underwood to see if changes could be made to reduce the cost.

Notices to build sidewalks in front of their properties on Cemetery hill were served on D. W. Anderson and Leslie Antis, on account of complaints.

A petition with eighteen signers of the Fourth ward was presented to the council, asking that C. G. Wilson be appointed to fill the seat in council made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Buck. The two other councilmen from the Fourth ward were commissioned to nominate a member at the next meeting.

Russians Pursue Austrians.
Petrograd, Sept. 17.—The following summary of the recent fighting in Galicia from the Russian point of view has been made public in Petrograd through semi-official channels.

"Russian troops are pursuing the Austrians with energy, and the defeat of the enemy continues. Certain Austrian army corps have been virtually annihilated. Russian forces have passed the River San."

"The eastern Russian advance guard is approaching Przemysl. The rapidity with which military operations are being conducted has made it impossible to determine accurately the losses of the enemy."

"On the River Vistula, Russian troops have taken possession of an accumulation of material for bridge building."

Victory Over Germans.
"The desperate efforts of German troops to save Austria's army from utter rout should be recorded. The active participation of German army corps in the fighting has been reported at several different places along the Austrian front, as, for instance, at Turobine. The Russians captured 36 pieces of long range German artillery, in addition to some 5000 German prisoners. At other places on the front several dozen large German guns, many of which had been produced in Austria, have been captured."

England Apologeizs for Carden's Vicious Criticism

Washington, Sept. 17.—Six transports have been ordered to Vera Cruz to bring the American troops back home.

Great Britain has apologized for Sir Leonel Carden's interview criticizing President Wilson's handling of the Mexican situation.

In an interview Sir Leonel Carden said:

"It is a desperate shame that the United States has seen fit to abandon the decent people of Mexico when they most need help. I do not know the reason for this, but it would seem that President Wilson had been misinformed in some matters and that if another side of the situation has been brought to his attention he has not seen fit to listen to anything that contradicts those who have told him that the country has been pacified."

WILL PENNANT WINNERS REACH THE 600 MARK?

(By International News Service)

New York, Sept. 17. The team that wins the National league pennant this year will have to play at a 650 to 700 clip from now on or it will establish a precedent in the old league—winning at a pennant with a percentage under the 600 mark.

This trick never has been turned in the National league, and turned only once in the American. The narrowest escape for the National league came in 1906 when the Brooklyn Dodgers, by winning the last game of the season, breezed under the wire with .603. In 1908 the Tigers, in the American league, won the pennant with a scuffling of .588, just four points ahead of the second place Naps.

The comparative records of the American and National leagues since the organization of the American in 1900 show that the National league, who have won the pennant usually have done so by a fairly comfortable margin. Four times in 14 years the winning team has slipped over the .700 mark, the best figure being that of 1905 made by the Chicago Cubs in 1906 when they won 116 out of 152 games.

The best figures compiled in the American league was set by the Boston Red Sox, in 1912. The nearest approach to this mark was made by the Athletics in 1907 when they turned in a .689 clip. It seems unlikely that the Athletics will beat the .691 mark this year.

A glance at the 14 year record for both teams will show that in each organization only four teams have split the honors. The Dodgers won in the National in 1900, the Pirates in 1901, 1902, 1903, and 1904, the Giants in 1905, 1906, 1907, 1908, 1909, 1910, 1911, 1912 and 1913, and the Cubs in 1906, 1907, 1908, 1909, 1910, 1911 and 1912. The Boston Red Sox in 1903, 1904 and 1905, the Detroit Tigers in 1907, 1908 and 1909.

BY TAD WAR MAPS FOR PROGRESS READERS

Valuable Aids to Understanding of European Situation

A HANDSOME PIECE OF WORK

With These Maps the Public Can Tell at a Glance the Location of the Cities and Towns Where the Fighting Nations are Struggling for supremacy—How Maps May be Procured.

In keeping with its determination to give the readers of the Progress the latest and best news of the great European war, the management of this paper has decided to distribute to the public at a nominal cost to the people an official map of the territory in which the big armies of the warring powers are fighting. With the aid of this map the citizen can trace minutely the movements of the armies and discover the number of battles as reported day by day in the columns of the Progress.

This map, in large, is pointed to five colors, with the names and locations of the towns and cities, mountains, rivers and other data necessary to a complete understanding of the situation in the war zone. The map was originally made in Europe by the war process, at once expensive and complete, and has been reproduced in this country at a moderate cost. The type is clear and the photos caught by the man who is after information regarding the war are plainly marked. On the back of this map is to be found the latest and most authentic information regarding the nations now engaged in the conflict.

The Progress has been able to procure a number of these maps for distribution to those who wish to have an intelligent conception of the great events which are happening in Europe. The number of these maps the reader can get from the copies from another page of this paper and present it, with ten cents, at the counter of the business office of the Progress and one of the maps will be handed to him. As the number of copies of the map which the Progress was able to get is limited it will be well for those who wish copies to call early.

The maps will be sent by mail either in town or out of town for 12 cents in coin, stamps or money order. They are really the most valuable maps of Europe that are in existence, and will prove a source of profit to those who wish to learn more than they know of the countries across the sea. If you wish to keep posted on the movements of the immense armies in the greatest conflict the world has ever known, get one of these maps at once.

Friends are invited. The many friends of Walter and Anne Doolin, throughout are cordially invited to attend a basket picnic at Grampian, September 18, in honor of their 25th year of married life. Every one who has a good wish for them will be made welcome.

RAILROAD

WAGE REDUCTION IS DENIED BY THE PENNSY

There is not likely to be any reduction along the lines of the various railroads. This was determined by the following statement given out from the Philadelphia office of the Pennsylvania railroad today that it was not likely to be a part of the retirement program planned by the company.

"There is a good prospect of $3,000,000 being added to the company's income for carrying the mails and this will remove one grievance which the railroads have long complained about especially since the inauguration of one parcel post. This amounts to about $12 per annum per mile of road and it is greatly appreciated as recommended by the committee the railroads will have gained a substantial point.

"As to the increased rates, lines operating in the territory between the Ohio river and the Mississippi river have already been allowed an increase of 5 per cent. This is an existing wage and efforts are being made to extend the zone over which the increase may be applied.

"In Washington the opinion seems to prevail that the several states will adopt an attitude of leniency toward the railroads. This was expressed in the opinion of the interstate commerce commission in its rate decision. And again in reply made yesterday by President Wilson to the railroad presidents who waited upon him on Wednesday, he says he is confident that there will be earnest and active co-operation to aid the railroads to increase their income."

Phenomenal Development. No railroad anywhere appears to have any more rapid strides than the Canadian Pacific which a brief twenty years back was served quite adequately by 100 passenger lines, where as, according to a report just issued, 2,248 are required at this time to handle the road's immense traffic. Likewise, makes use of 2,171 dining and sleeping cars and coaches, together with 88,000 freight cars of all classes.

The cost of operating the big system during the last fiscal year was $87,358,896, of which transportation expenses aggregated $42,500,280, maintenance of equipment $16,417,247 and maintenance of structure $16,438,551.

Known Pittsburgh division freight car dumper residing at Derry, took his life Saturday morning, about 9:15 o'clock, by shooting himself in the breast.

Cars Being Stored. Many steel cars have been taken out of storage on track No. 2 on the Pittsburgh Branch between Holiday, Pa., and Alexandria, Pa., of the Pennsylvania Railroad recently. Because a number of points on the branch both tracks are now in service, although a number of cars are still on the track for a stretch of several miles. Wooden cars are being stored in the Holiday freight yards and at other points on the branch where steel cars had been placed several months ago.

The Last Shot

By
FREDERICK PALMER

(Copyright, 1914, by Charles Scribner's Sons)

"Very true, indeed. Perhaps I had that partly in mind in making you vice-chief of staff," responded the premier.

"Then it all goes back to the public—that enormous body of humanity out there?" He swung the paper handle around with outstretched arm toward the walls of the room. "To public opinion—as does everything else in this age—to the people—our masters, your and mine? For no man can stand against them when they say no or yes."

"You know the keys to play on thought," remarked Westering with a complimentary smile. "No one knows quite so well."

"And you are sure—sure we can win?" the premier asked with a long, tense look at Westering, who was steady under the scrutiny.

"Absolutely," he answered. "Five millions against three! His mathematics, or our courage and skill are not equal to theirs. Absolutely! We have the power, why not use it? We do not live in a dream age!"

"Stake My Life!" He Cried Hoarsely.

"From a sudden, unthinking exertion of his strength the knife which had been the recipient of his emotions snapped in two. Rather carefully the premier laid the pieces on the table before he rose and turned to Westering, his decision made."

"If the people respond with the war, then it is war," he said. "I take you at your word that you will win."

"A condition!" Westering announced. "From the moment war begins the army is master of all intelligence, all communication, all resources. Everything we require goes into the crucible!"

"And the press—the mischievous, greedy, but very useful press?" asked the premier.

"It also shall serve; also obey. No lists of killed and wounded shall be given out until I am ready. The public must know nothing except what I choose to tell. I act for the people and the nation."

"That is agreed," said the premier. "For these terrible weeks every nerve and muscle of the nation is at your service to win for the nation. In three or four days I shall know if the public rises to the call. If not—" He shook his head.

"While all the information given out is provocative to our people, you will declare you hope that war may be averted," Westering continued. "This will screen our purpose. Finally, on top of public enthusiasm will come the word that the brass have fired the first shot as they must when a cross the frontier. That they have been killing our soldiers. This will make the racial spirit of every man respond. Having decided for war, every plan is worthy that helps to victory."

"... seems headish!" exclaimed the premier in answer to a thought edging in the powerful current of his brain. "Fleishish with calculation, but merciful, as you say."

"A terrible campaign! A ready machine taking the road!" Westering declared. "Less suffering than if we went to war carelessly for a long campaign—can it be allowed sentiment to interfere with intellect?"

"I like your energy, your will!" said the premier admiringly. "And about the declaration of war? We shall time that to your purpose."

"Declarations of war before striking by nations taking the aggressive, are a disadvantage," Westering explained. "They are going out of practice. Witness the examples of Japan against Russia and the Balkan allies against Turkey. In these days declarations are not necessary as a warning of what is going to happen. They belong to the complete of fencers."

"Yes, exactly. The declaration of war and the ambassador's passport will be prepared and the wire that lighting has begun will release them," agreed the premier.

"Yet if we did lose! If when I had given you all your plans were wrong! If our army were broken in pieces on the frontier and then the nation, kept in ignorance of events, learned the truth—the premier enunciated slowly and pointedly while he looked at Westering—"that is the end for us both. You would hardly want to return to the capital to face public wrath!"

"We must win though we lose a million men!" he answered. "I stake my life!" he cried hoarsely, striking his fist on the table.

"You stake your life!" repeated the premier with slow emphasis. "I do!" said Westering. "Yes, my life. We cannot fail!"

"Then it will be war. If the people want it!" said the premier. "I shall not resist their desire!" he added in his official manner, at peace with his conscience.

Partow was a great brain set on an enormous body. Partow's eyes had the fire of youth at sixty-five, but the pendulous flesh of his cheeks was pasty. Jealousy and faction had endeavored for years to remove him from his position at the head of the army on account of age. New governments decided as they came in that he must go, and they went out with him still in the saddle.

Let officers apply themselves with conspicuous energy and they head from a general Partow; let officers only keep step and free of courtly martial, and they heard from a merciless taskmaster. Peculiarly human, peculiarly dictatorial, dynamic, and inscrutable was Partow, who never asked any one under him to work harder than himself.

Langston appeared in the presence of Jove shortly after eight o'clock the next morning after he left La Tite. Jove rolled his big head on his short neck in a nod and said:

"Late!"

"The train was late, sir," Langston replied, "and I have some news about our thousandth chance."

"Hm-m! What is it?" asked Partow. When Langston had told his story, Partow worked his lips in a way he had if he were struck by a passing reflection which might or might not have a connection with the subject in hand. "Strange about her when you consider who her parents were!" he said. "But you never know. Hm-m! Why don't you sit down, young man?"

"The way that the Grays gave out our dispatch convinces me of their intentions," Partow said. "Their people are rising to it and ours are rising in answer. The Grays have been transferring regiments from distant provinces to their frontier because they will fight better in an invasion. We are transferring home regiments to our frontier because they will fight for their own property. By Thursday you will find that open mobilization on both sides has begun."

"My department is ready," said Langston, "all except your decision about censorship."

"A troublesome point," responded Partow. "I have procrastinated because two definite plans were fully worked out. It is a matter of choice between them: either publicity or complete secrecy. You know I am no believer in riding two horses at once. My mind is about made up; but let me hear your side again. Sometimes I get conviction by probing another man's."

Langston was at his best, for his own conviction was intense. "Of course they will go in for secrecy; but our case is different," he began.

Partow settled himself to listen with the gift of the organizer who draws from his informant the brevity of essentials.

"I should take the people into our confidence," Langston proceeded. "I should make them feel that we were one family fighting for all we hold dear against the invader. If our losses are heavy, if we have a setback, then the inspiration of the heroism of those who have fallen and the danger of their own homes feeling the foot of the invader next will impel the living to greater sacrifices. For the Grays are in the wrong. The moral and the legal right is with us."

"And the duty of men like you and me, chosen for the purpose," said Partow, "is worthy to direct the courage that goes with moral right. The overt act of war must come from them by violating our frontier, not in the African jungle but here. Even when the burglar fingers the window-sash we shall not fire—no, not until he enters our house. When he does, you would have a message go out to our people that will set them quivering with indignation!"

"Yes, and I would let the names of our soldiers who fall first be known and how they fell, their backs to their frontier homes and their faces to the foe."

Our very liberality in giving news will help us to cover the military perils which we desire to preserve," Partow said, with slow emphasis. "We shall hold back what we please, content of the people's trust. Good policy that, yes! But enough! Your orders are ready, in detail, I believe. You have nothing to add?"

"No, sir, nothing; at least, not until war begins."

"Very well. We shall have the orders issued at a proper moment," concluded Partow. "And Westering is going to bed," he proceeded after a thoughtful pause, "that a man is reader to die fighting to hold his own household than fighting to take another man's. War is not solely an affair of machinery and numbers. The human element is still uppermost. Give me your hand—no, not that one, not the one you shake hands with—the one wounded in action!"

Partow inclosed the stiffened fingers in his own with something of the caress which an old bear that is in very good humor might give to a promising cub.

"I have planned, planned, planned for this time. The world shall soon know as the elements of it go on the crucible test, whether it is well done or not. I want to live to see the day when the last charge made against our trenches is beaten back. Then they may throw this old body onto the rubbish heap as soon as they please—it is a fat, unwieldy behemoth of an old body!"

"No, no, it isn't!" Langston objected hotly. "He was seeing only what most people saw after talking with Partow for a few minutes, his fine, intelligent eyes and beautiful forehead."

"All that I wanted of the body was to feed my brain," Partow continued, heedless of the interruption. "I have watched my mind as a navigator watches a barometer. I have been ready at the first sign that it was losing its grip to give up. Yet I have felt that my body would go on feeding my brain and that to the last moment of consciousness, when suddenly the body collapses, I should have self-possession and energy of mind. Under the coming strain the shock may come, as a cord snaps. At that instant my successor will take up my work where I leave it off."

"The old fogey who has aimed to join experience to youth chooses youth. You took your medicine without grumbling in the disagreeable but vitally important position of chief of intelligence. Now you—there, don't tremble with stage fright!" For Langston's hand was quivering in Partow's grasp, while his face was that of a man stunned.

"You are to be at the right hand of this old body," continued Partow. "You are to go with me to the front, to sleep in the room next to mine; to be always at my side, and, finally, you are to promise that if ever the old body fails in its duty to the mind, if ever you see that I am not standing up to the strain, you are to say so to me and I give you my word that I shall let you take charge."

Langston was too stunned to speak for a moment. The arrangement seemed a hideous joke; a refinement of cruelty, inconceivable. It was expecting him to tell Atlas that he was old and to take the weight of the world off the giant's shoulders.

"Have you lost your patriotism?" demanded Partow. "Are you afraid? Afraid to tell me the truth? Afraid of duty? Afraid in your youth of the burden that I bear in age?"

His fingers closed in on Langston's with such force that the grip was painful. "Promise!" he commanded.

"I promise!" Langston said with a throb.

"That's it! That's the way! That's the kind of soldier I like," Partow declared with change of tone, and he rose from his chair with a spring that was a delight to Langston in its proof of the physical vigor so stoutly denied. "We have a lot to say to each other today," he added; "but first I am going to show you the whole bag of tricks."

His arm crooked in Langston's, they went along the main corridor of the staff office and entered a vault having a single chair and a small table in the center and lined by sections of numbered pigeonholes, each with a combination lock. At the base of one section was a small safe. It was not the first time that Langston had been in this vault. He had the combination of two of the sections of pigeonholes, aerostatics and intelligence. The rest belonged to other divisions.

"The safe is my own, as you know. No one opens it; no one knows what is in it but me," said Partow, taking from it an envelope and a manuscript, which he laid on the table. "There you have all that is in my brain—the whole plan. The envelope contains the combinations of all the pigeonholes. If you wish to look up any details"

"Thank you!" Langston half-whispered. It was all as could think of to say.

"And you will find that there is more than you thought, perhaps; the reason why I have fought hard to remain chief of staff, why—" Partow continued in a voice that had the sepulchral uncanniness of a threat long nursed now breaking free of the bondage of years within the sound-proof walls. "But—" he broke off suddenly as if he distrusted even the security of the vault. "Yes it is all there—my life's work, my dream, my ambition, my plan!"

Langston heard the lock slide in the door as Partow went out and he was alone with the army's secrets. As he read Partow's first handwriting many parts fell together, many lines on a chessboard grew clear. His breath came faster, he bent closer over the table, he turned back pages to go over them again. Every sentence dropped home in his mind like a bolt to a socket. Precisions of the passage of time, he did not heed the door open or realize Partow's presence until he felt Partow's hand on his shoulder.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at first sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidney has to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminatory tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy nervous spells, acid stomach, or have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act-time. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Football season will open on Saturday of this week, and after we hope that the war in Europe will not curtail the supply of amica and sticking plaster.

The hunting season opens on October fifteenth and by that time it is probable that the big city hunters will all have established themselves and their dogs in the woods of this county.

WHERE SYMPATHY BELONGS

American newspapers have been accused of expressing sympathy for the allies in this big war. Probably the newspapers express the views of the American people. It is plain that the American people do not have sympathy for Austria. Austria would not have been a part of the world war if it had not been backed by Germany. If the Kaiser had told Francis Joseph not to make unwarranted demands on Serbia, Austria would not have started the conflagration which has spread all over Europe. However, no sympathy is wasted on Serbia; no excessive sympathy is extended to England and France. All of the nations are fighting because they hope to increase their territorial possessions, not because they believe they are in the right.

It is to families of the men who are blindly obeying the orders of their leaders and who are being slaughtered on the field of battle that the American people extend the sympathy. To the widows and orphans who must suffer most from the war. To the little children deprived of a father's love and protection. These are the ones who deserve sympathy, not the nations at arms. These rulers themselves do not place themselves on the danger line. They are careful of their own persons, but are ready to send their subjects to slaughter and if they were mine-miners to be knocked down without further thought as the part of their rulers.

There is hope that this will be the last great war the world will ever witness. The lessons it will teach should sink deep into the hearts of all nations until the mere mention of militarism will prove hateful and until rulers shall be deprived of the power to sacrifice their subjects with us. Little companionship of confidence as they would shoot down the game of the forest. And let us hope that the ruler, whoever he may be, who is responsible for bringing on this horrible war will be executed as a murderer and his crime against civilization be written down in history with the evil deeds of men of the dark ages.

WHERE IS THE GAME?

Secretary Kalbfus, of the state game commission, states that game of all kinds is plentiful in this state. Will the secretary please inform some six thousand hunters in Clearfield county where this game is to be found? There are more deer in the mountains now than there were a year ago, but where are the pheasants, quail and squirrels? What did the game commission do last winter to protect the birds and animals from perishing from hunger?

The state game commission has something like three hundred thousand dollars at its command. This money, or a goodly part of it, is supposed to be used in propagating and protecting game of all kinds. A large amount of this money must be used to pay salaries of game wardens who do not make any effort to protect game. Some of the money goes toward printing letters to the press, informing—erroneously—the hunters in big cities that game is plentiful and inviting them to camp for the entire season in the woods and mountains—and not to forget their dogs.

Hunters who live in the counties of the state know that there is not the quantity of game in the woods and fields which the state game commission mentions. No effort has been made to replace the pheasants which have been killed in past years by the pot hunters from Pittsburgh and the other big cities. No effort has been made to arrest and punish these pot hunters and others who violate the law. But the state game commission appears to have plenty of money with which to carry on expensive lawsuits in the court in the prosecution of hunters who inadvertently kill a deer the horns of which are not long enough to carry a bundle of hay upon them.

Real hunters would like to see the game commission make the attempt to propagate game birds and animals. There are thousands of acres of land in Clearfield county on which game of all kinds ought to abound, but upon which not a bird or beast is to be found. Unless a hunter is able to spend at least a week in the woods he may return home empty handed. It is only the professional hunter and the pot hunter—and the two are cousins—who is able to bag game, and most of these take into the woods and use dogs without being molested by the game wardens. If the game commission really wants to give all classes of hunters a chance it will spend some of its money in propagating and protecting game in and out of season.

"I'll hev to charge ye thirty, on account of this here war."

TODARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair-Restorer," avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not stylish, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

INDEPENDENTS THROUGHOUT STATE TURNING TO GIFFORD PINCHOT

Republicans Who Want a Protective Tariff and at Same Time
Are Against Penrose and His Record of Corruption
and Servility to Standard Oil and Other Special
Privilege Will Vote for Washington Party Man

In spite of the enormous sums of money being spent in this campaign by the liquor interests and the rich groups of corporation men to elect Penrose it is becoming more and more evident that the senior senator cannot be returned to Washington.

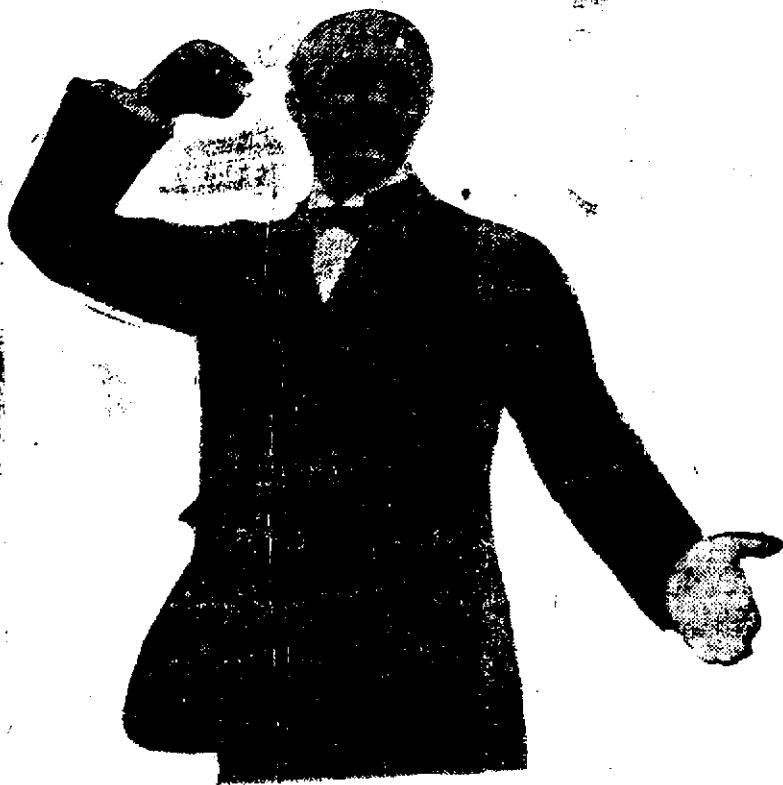

Reports from every part of the state show that the people are making up their minds to the fact that when they vote for Gifford Pinchot, the Washington party candidate, they not only get a protective tariff man, but they get a representative at Washington who will stand clean and firm for the common good.

Penrose is being publicly rebuked. At county fairs he has been given the cold shoulder; at meetings called to hear him he has been listened to with scant attention. He has failed utterly to answer the serious charges against him. Even his managers are in despair at the uncanny growth of anti-Penrose sentiment throughout the length and breadth of Pennsylvania. More serious than anything else in the near growing and oft repeated declarations of the hosts of independent Republicans that the time has come to put the party into clean hands.

They Want a Clean Man.

The tariff that Penrose boasts of was so expensive that it disgusted the people. What kind of tariff maker is it that arouses distrust even among his own followers by his excesses?

Independent Republicans know this and are growing more and more convinced that Penrose is a mistake.

Some of the significant remarks made at recent county fairs where Penrose has spoken would discourage his managers could they hear them.

The burden of the comment throughout the state at the present time is that Penrose is a legacy from the Quay machine. He was put into office by Quay, he was kept there during the time when the people could not vote direct for senators through the machinations and deals of the politicians.

He has been a monstrous failure, according to the popular concept of what a senator should be.

The protective tariff men in this state, the independents who want Pennsylvania to be represented by a high type of statesman have pretty well made up their minds now whom they will select.

By no manner of means does Penrose measure up.

Gifford Pinchot, from every angle is the logical man.

SAY PENROSE FULLY EARNED $25,000 STANDARD OIL CHECK

Philadelphia, September 15.—Penrose machine followers who are working for the Senator here are indignant that anybody should question Penrose's acceptance of $25,000 from Standard Oil after the way the Senator worked for that company during his public career.

The Penrose workers want the Senator to acknowledge publicly that he got the money from Standard Oil and that he fully earned it.

It was recalled here that on February 20th, 1900, as shown by letters passing between Penrose and Standard Oil officials, the Senator took the confidential report of the United States Industrial Commission which was investigating Standard Oil and secretly sent it to that company.

The United States Industrial Commission was a body appointed principally to investigate Standard Oil which was regarded as a dangerous trust.

Acted as Their Errand Boy.

The fact that Senator Penrose as a member of this commission took this report from the files and sent it to the Standard Oil even before it was sent to Congress, was of the utmost value to the company. It allowed Standard Oil to actually dominate the Commission and to prevent the Government from taking any steps against them.

On February 21st, 1900, John D. Archbold, the Vice President of Standard Oil, acknowledged the receipt of the report which Penrose sent him in a letter which read as follows:

"26 Broadway, N. Y., February 21, 1900.

"Hon. Boies Penrose,
"Senate Chamber,
"Washington, D. C.

"My Dear Senator:

"I have your kind note of yesterday with enclosure, which latter I beg to return herewith. We think the report is so fair that we will not undertake to suggest any changes. With many thanks, I am,

Very truly yours,

(Signed) "JNO. D. ARCHBOLD."

Standard Oil got everything they wanted from Penrose.

"Why wouldn't Standard Oil give $25,000 to Penrose?" asked the political machine workers here. "Didn't he earn it by saving the Standard Oil when the trust was in danger?"

Restocking Forest Streams.

The restocking of national forest streams in all states where such forests are situated, including those now being acquired in the White mountains and the southern Appalachians, will be given attention as rapidly as supplies of fish fry become available for planting purposes. The forest service is admirably organized to carry on work of this kind, and does so with practically no interference with regular activities since the fish must be handled with the utmost haste and frequently during the late evening or early morning hours. The production of the existing federal and state fish hatcheries is hardly adequate to meet all demands, however, and therefore the work has to be done in installments.

His Motto.

"And what is your favorite motto?" asked the reporter who was interviewing the candidate for congress. "Put yourself in his place," replied the candidate.

Positively Unreasonable.

REPUBLICANS SAY PENROSE IS MENACE TO THEIR PARTY

Public Ledger of Philadelphia,
G. O. P. Organ, Calls on De-
cent Republicans to Save
Party by Defeating Boss

Philadelphia, Sept. 15.—Decent Republicans in Pennsylvania are calling on their party associates to defeat Penrose in order to bring back the party to the ideals of Lincoln. They point out that with Penrose in the saddle, Pennsylvania can get nothing at Washington. They declare that any protective tariff endorsed by him will arouse country wide suspicion and distrust. They are backing Gifford Pinchot who stands on a strong protective platform.

They declare that Penrose is responsible for the present Democratic tariff because he and his associates so broke faith with the people on the Payne Aldrich tariff bill that the party was repudiated.

Says Penroseism is Fatal.

The Public Ledger of this city, one of the staunchest of the Republican papers, foresees what evil effects the attempt to re-elect Penrose would bring to the party in this state.

In a clarion call to the Republicans of Pennsylvania it declared that Penrose was a menace to the National Republicanism and if the party was to live and regain popular confidence, Penrose must be defeated.

The editorial from the Public Ledger is as follows:

Ledger Calls Him Menace.

PENROSE A MENACE TO NATIONAL REPUBLICANISM

The Republican party does not begin nor does it end in Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvania electorate in the selection of a nominee for the United States Senate is expected to have due regard for the exigencies of the party throughout the Union. It must begin the rehabilitation of Republicanism nationally by tangible evidence of complete repudiation of those elements which have dragged the party into unpopularity and burdened it with the cause of discreditable leadership.

Republicans in other States cannot understand the peculiarities of politics in this State. The test of the new spirit in Republicanism will be, to them, simply whether or not Mr. Penrose is the nominee of the party. No explanation of the why or wherefore of his nomination will answer Kansans who have at Republican candidates the charge that Penrose is of them and for them, that his right of leadership in the party has been indorsed by his own State. There will be no argument which Republican candidates in other States can make if confronted with a Penrose victory in Pennsylvania. The stain of Penroseism will stick to them; they will be unable to wipe it off. They will be forced to assume responsibility for a leadership which has been repudiated by the nation. The alliance which Mr. Penrose is able to make in Pennsylvania, other Republicans cannot make in other States. A fair wind for him means a foul wind for them.

The expectation of some manufacturers that equitable tariff rates can be restored by the nomination and election of Senator Penrose is fatuous. There is no surer way to perpetuate the opposition in power. If protection is to have a proper hearing in the United States, it will get that hearing without Penrose. But it will not get it with him. A Republican majority in Congress can only be obtained if it is certain that that majority will not be dominated by Penrose, that Penrose will not even be there. Penrose is a big Democratic asset in Pennsylvania which is Democracy's biggest asset everywhere else. Republican principles and Penrose cannot dominate the Government at one and the same time. If Republican principles are again to determine national policies, they must have some other interpreter than Penrose.

During his tour of Somerset county, Pinchot was approached by an old soldier at Somerset.

"I'm a Lincoln Republican," said the old man.

"Are you for Penrose?" asked Pinchot.

"No, sir; I'm for you and a protective tariff," he answered. "I know what kind of a man Abraham Lincoln was. He was always against such fellows as Penrose."

The Philadelphia Public Ledger, a Republican paper says: "The anti-Penrose movement within the Republican party is a sign of political health. For the past few years Republicanism in Pennsylvania has been suffering from a wasting disease, malignant, but not chronic, distressing but not necessarily fatal, serious but not incurable. It is Penroseism."

During the time of Solon, the famous lawmaker, he secured the passage of a statute compelling every able-bodied adult man in the nation to give proof once a year that he was earning a decent living and was self-supporting. LOST?

Before the first guns had thundered forth their message of European strife, America had begun to pay the penalty of fear and uncertainty. In one short week the quotations of 105 leading American securities had shrunk $696,967,261.00.

But it was not a shrinkage of American making. It was a result of the desire of European security holders to trade their securities for cash. Cash is a handy thing in war times.

War means ordinarily peaceful merchants shooting guns at normally peaceful farm hands; factory operatives busily engaged in sabering machinists; baker boys galloping madly about on horses which ought to be hauling bread.

Business and War have nothing in common. When war stalks abroad Business goes elsewhere, and Money is the boon companion of Business.

When Europe sold back to us millions of dollars of securities it was in an effort to obtain money with which to later purchase from us some of the things Europe must have. Europe is an old customer of ours, but she is expecting to buy now more largely than ever before, and her $300,000,000 income from globe-trotting Americans will probably be missing this coming year.

Meanwhile, Europe has been compelled to shut up her own shop. There are new faces looking at us across our counters and fingering our goods. Europe used to number them among her customers.

Let's straighten up the counters and dust off the shelves. It looks as if business was going to be brisk and we might as well be ready. And if necessary to hire extra help to look after trade, we'd better start looking around for it now.

WAR STORIES TOLD BY WOUNDED MAN

walk were assisted to alight. Whatever their pain, they disguised it by smiling, and several were smoking. Some had their head enveloped in bandages; other wore slings. Many of them walked with a limp, and several placed their arms around the necks of R. A. M. C. men, and were assisted to vehicles.

One man walked with the aid of a crutch, another had been hurt on the jaw, but he was smoking a pipe with great relish.

Here and there tunics were torn. In some cases they had been ripped open down the arms on the shoulder to permit the surgeons to attend to the wounds.

With expedition the officers whose injuries were not severe were placed in taxicabs, motor-cars, and private omnibuses.

Then the stretcher brigade turned its attention to the officers who remained in the "wards" on the train. Pillows and blankets were placed on the stretchers, and a procession filed up the platform and entered the train.

The first officer brought out was reading a newspaper and smoking a cigarette. The next man, too, was smoking. His injury was to the leg. A third had his knees drawn up. All except one were looking cheery.

Ambulance surgeons, wagons and buses were waiting, and one by one the wounded were placed on beds and driven to the hospital.

The R. A. M. C. and the Ambulance Corps were still engaged in tending the injured officers when a second train, plastered with red crosses, ran in at the adjoining platform.

Soon the soldiers were flocking out of the carriages. The first group to walk to the cars mostly wore slings.

There were bandaged heads, arms, and shoulders, but the soldiers themselves were in the best of spirits and jumped into the buses with the friskiness of schoolboys.

Some of the wounded however, were more seriously injured. One man lay on a stretcher, which was allowed to rest on the ground for some time, and a doctor examined him and felt his pulse.

Others, too weak to move much, were lifted from stretchers into vans, where they were made comfortable on mattresses and blankets, with soft pillows for their heads.

Rugs were wrapped around them, and so they made the journey to hospital with a minimum of inconvenience.

As a party of the wounded were being driven through Moorgate-street they were heartily cheered by a large crowd of business men.

The flower girls throw their bouquets at the soldiers.

We are for Clifford Pinchot for Senator because he represents decency against decadence and because he is against Penrose, who is the incarnation of the booze propaganda. PREDICTS END OF PENROSE MACHINE

Philadelphia, Sept. 15.—The voters of the state will clean out the Penrose machine at this election by putting McCormick in Harrisburg and at the same time clean out Penrose by electing Pinchot, declared A. Nevin Detrich, the Washington party state chairman here today.

Detrich in an interview declared that Brumbaugh was certain of defeat and that Pinchot would be Pennsylvania's next United States Senator.

"Do you expect the Democratic party to place any Washington party men on their ticket?" he was asked.

"I am not informed as to the intentions or expectations of the Democrats," said Detrich.

"Do you believe that the Washington party will be satisfied without a place on the Democratic ticket?"

"I believe that the Washington party of Pennsylvania is satisfied to conduct its campaign along the lines outlined from the beginning, namely, the over-

DUBOIS CITIZENS GREET MR. PINCHOT

"I read his answer this morning to the offer of the North American to support him if he made clear his determination to end Penroseism in this state. He absolutely dodged the issue again, just as he has been doing ever since he conferred with Penrose before he announced his candidacy. He said absolutely nothing on the greatest political issue in this country. He can never be elected.

"I have nothing but contempt for a man who tries to worm his way into public office by concealing his stand on that of which the people are demanding knowledge. The withdrawal of William Draper Lewis in favor of Vance McCormick, makes it certain that this man is afraid he cannot be elected governor of this state."

The meeting was ably handled by Frank Hutton who acted as chairman and F. M. Timlin, chairman of Sandy township.

Mr. Pinchot was the first speaker of the evening, and was followed by J. B. Mayo, candidate for congress who held his audience well, and told them of the robberies in the state highway department, and of the stealing of the Republican nomination in Chicago in 1912.

After Mr. Mayo's address the chairman introduced Lex N. Mitchell, to the crowd and Mr. Mitchell was very favorably received. He is a candidate for congress at large, and is making great headway, due to his ability as a speaker.

At the close of the meeting Mr. Pinchot visited the tabernacle at the request of Dr. Henry Stough, who is conducting a series of remarkable revivals in DuBois. Mr. Pinchot was warmly received on every hand and shook hands with practically every person in reach.

He visited the railroad shops in DuBois this morning, and at several of the factories, and on every hand was received with the same enthusiasm as has been shown throughout his entire trip over Clearfield county.

The tour will extend today through the counties of Elk and McKean to the party to Smithport for the night.

throw of the corrupt political domination of Pennsylvania and securing of progressive legislation in the state and nation. The Washington party, in striving to gain these things, will neither ask nor expect reward beyond their accomplishments."

"Do you anticipate that many Washington party voters will support Brumbaugh instead of McCormick?"

"No. Brumbaugh is the proved an accepted candidate of the machine. No Progressive will vote for him. He must look for his votes from the ranks of those who are willing to accept the same allied leadership as he has accepted."

"How will fusion on the governorship affect the senatorial contest?"

"Pinchot is by all odds a stronger candidate than Palmer. On national issues Pennsylvanians have shown that they believe more largely in the things Pinchot stands for than in the things Palmer stands for. In making sure the defeat of Penrose the Republicans who oppose him as a moral issue and thousands of Democrats who see the hopelessness of Palmer's candidacy will vote for Pinchot and assure his election."

KALBFUS FAVORS CITY HUNTERS BY NEW RULING

County Treasurer Frank J. Harris, of Pittsburgh, and Dr. Joseph Kalbfus, secretary of the game commission of the state of Pennsylvania, are participants in a contention being watched by a little army of hunters in Allegheny county and elsewhere.

Last year, Treasurer Harris issued blank hunters' licenses to practically every justice of the peace in Allegheny county. This made it possible for the resident of the most remote township or borough to secure a license with as little delay and inconvenience as the man who lived in the city. This year, Dr. Kalbfus has taken the stand that all license must be sold at the county treasurer's office and that the justices of the peace cannot act as his agent.

It is the county treasurer's intention to proceed under the same system as last year unless actually restrained by the state authorities.

Distributing the licenses among justices of the peace, in his belief of County Treasurer Harris, greatly increased the revenue on that source.

He is of the opinion that had the average hunter been forced to go to the city in order to buy a dollar hunting license he either would have hunted without a license or not hunted at all.

Magic for Rust Spots.
To remove rust spots on bathtub and basins and discolorations in toilet basins and sinks apply muriatic acid with a mop. As soon as the discoloration is removed the acid should be thoroughly rinsed off with clear water. The acid works like magic; it is almost instantaneous in its effect and the labor of scrubbing is saved.

KAISER IN FAVOR OF ENDING THE WAR

GERMAN EMPEROR READY TO QUIT UNDER CERTAIN CONDITIONS

Would Not Agree to Give Up Any Territorial Possessions

GREATEST ARTILLERY DUEL IN HISTORY

Eight Army Corps, Formerly Sent Into East Prussia and Galicia to Repel Russian Attacks, Have Been Ordered to Proceed to France and Join the Kaiser's Troops Now Defending Their Stand Along the Marne and Aisne Rivers—Great Battle Between the Two Armies Continues With Unabated Vigor—Germans Being Slowly Driven From New Line—Conflict Rages Over a Front of 110 Miles.

(By International News Service.)
Berlin, via Amsterdam, Sept. 17.—Informal diplomatic representations have been made to the kaiser as to whether Germany would accept another offer of mediation by the United States. A reply has been sent to Washington.

The Kaiser's Conditions.
It is semi-officially reported that the kaiser replied that Germany did not seek war and would place no obstacles in the way of peace, but under no circumstance would he enter into negotiations threatening the territorial integrity or commercial resources of the empire.

Rushing to Attack Allies.
Petrograd, Sept. 17.—The war office is informed that the eighth German army corps sent to repel the Russian attack in East Prussia and Galicia have been withdrawn and are being rushed to France to help strengthen the attack on the allies.

Germans Take Offensive.
Paris, Sept. 17.—Heavy reinforcements have reached the German right wing. General von Kluck taking the offensive striking fiercely at the allies' left wing.

Fresh French troops are being rushed to Noyon.

If the battle now in progress goes in favor of the Germans a second advance on Paris will follow, according to a high government official at noon today.

5000 Guns Being Used.
The battle of the Aisne continues. The greatest artillery duel in the history of the world is in progress, five thousand guns being used.

The Germans thus far have been repulsed, the allies attempt to drive them back from the hills along the Aisne.

The allies have gained crossings of the river at three points, under the terrific fire of the German batteries.

Furious Fighting Continues.
The rear-guard engagement upon which the German retreating right wing entered last Monday has developed into what promises to be the decisive battle of the campaign in France.

Fighting proceeded with renewed fury yesterday all along the 110-mile battle front, in which upward of 2,000,000 men are engaged.

Germans on Defensive.
The Germans are fighting strictly on the defensive, battling desperately to prevent the utter rout of their armies. The Germans are being forced back steadily before the allied pressure; but they are fighting with dogged resistance every mile of the way. The advance of the allies is officially described as steady but not rapid.

The Germans have delivered several counter-attacks and have occupied sev-

WAR STORIES TOLD BY WOUNDED MEN

Highly Interesting Talea of the Fighting in France

CLAIM GERMANS CANNOT SHOOT

Kaiser's Men Like a Big Battering Ram and Did Not Seem to Care How Many of them Were Killed—In a Number of Instances They Were Simply Mowed Down by the Bullets of Their Foes.

(War Stories by the Wounded.)
(BY HERBERT TEMPLE.)
(European Manager of the International News Service.)

London, Sept. 17.—Several hundred wounded British troops are now arriving daily in London, and they bring with them highly interesting personal stories of the war. At the railway stations, the wounded are always greeted with cheers and money, flowers and delicacies are showered on them.

"I was at Mons on Monday on the bridge across the canal there, right in the thick of it," said a young infantryman. "It was there that I got this trouble, a bullet in the thigh." He pointed to a bandaged limb. "But I got the chap who did it. He went on gaily, and produced a tobacco tin in which, with a few shreds of tobacco, was a shrapnel bullet.

"We did not have much shelter where I was," he said. "We just had to do the best we could."

"The fire was frightfully heavy, but you know they cannot shoot for free, and waste an awful lot of ammunition. The artillery are the worst but even they can't shoot. It's numbers that does it—nothing else."

"As soon as we shot one lot down another came up. That's what happened all the time. Their losses must be enormous."

"Shoot!" contemptuously echoed a burly infantryman, whose head was swathed in bandages. "Germans shoot! Why, they could not hit this station at a thousand yards."

An Argyll and Sutherland Highlander with a tremendous Scottish accent held forth from a stretcher to a group of listeners.

"I wonder whether we shall be allowed to stop in hospital here," he said. "I've been chased out of two already. The Germans shelled us in the field hospitals, but they didn't do much damage, you know—artillery don't unless they can shoot, and these couldn't."

"I've been picking up clothes as I came down," he went on, pointing to his shoes and socks. "These are French, and so is this blanket," he said, and was going to give further details when he was picked up and placed in a motor-car.

"Tell you another time—the French have been awfully kind to us," he cried as he was borne off.

"I think a great many of our fellows are only wounded," said a cavalryman. "It does not do to take too much notice of what we hear. We were told out there that the 2nd Dragoons had been cut up, but we came across them, and they had lost very few men."

"The Germans were like a great big battering ram," said another. "They did not seem to mind how many were killed, and sometimes their men were simply thrown away."

"At one place the Germans poured fire down on our guns. It was terrible punishment."

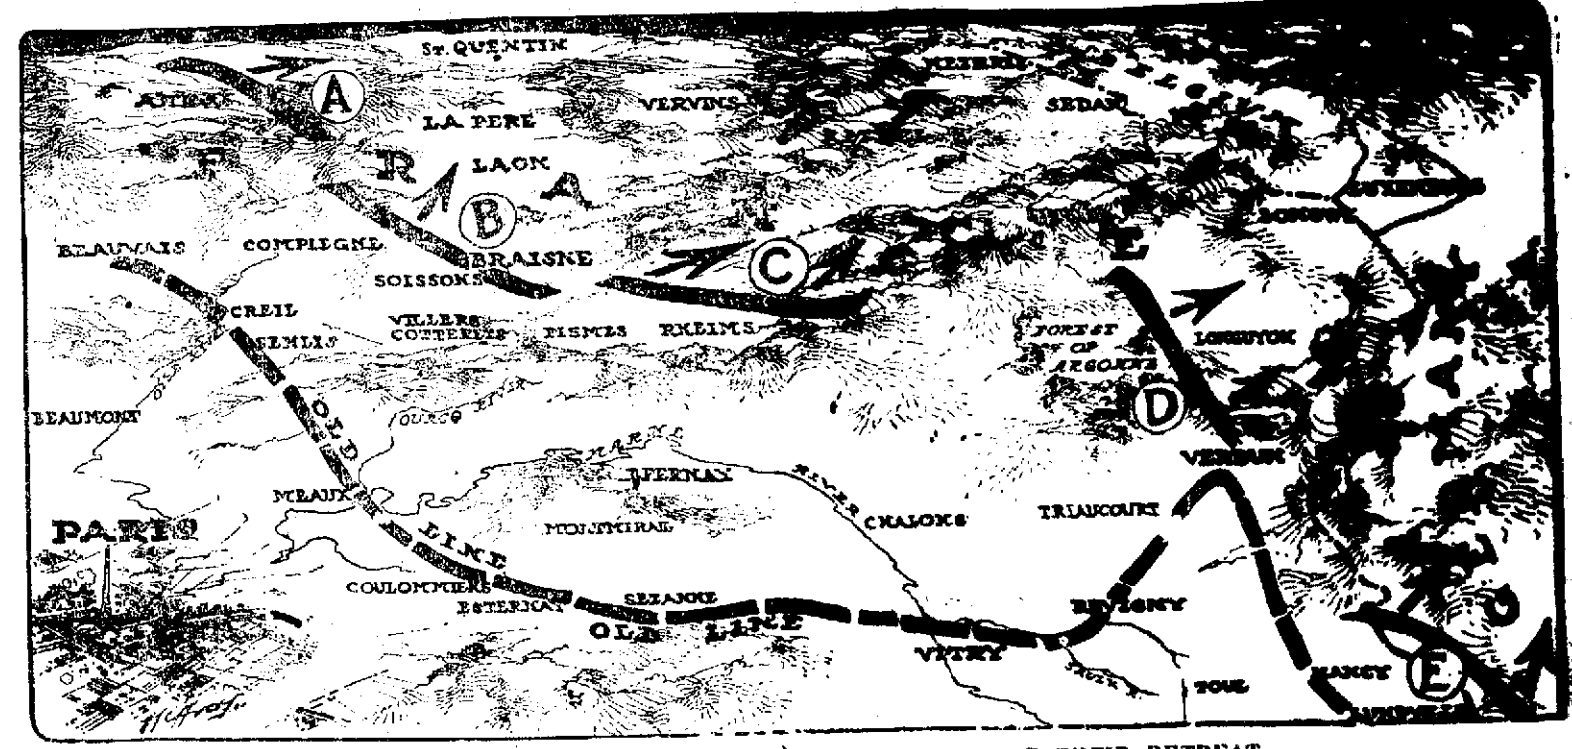

"They have been suffering heavily all along, but the French are chasing them now, and they are getting it in the neck properly."

The first Red Cross train that arrived at Waterloo carried officers. First of all, those who were able to travel.

FORMER GERMAN BATTLE LINE BEFORE PARIS COMPARED WITH THEIR RETREAT.
The old battle line of the German army is shown by the heavy dotted line. The various units are indicated by letters, namely:
A—The army commanded by General von Kluck, and part of General von Buelow's forces are shown to have fallen back from Amiens and Laon.
B—The balance of Von Buelow's army retreating from the Compiègne and Soissons toward St. Quentin.
C—The armies commanded by the Prince of Wurttemberg and General von Hausen moving north toward Rethel.
D—Crown Prince Frederick William and the Crown Prince of Bavaria forced back from the neighborhood of Argonne, with part of General von Herringen's forces. The Crown Prince is making the last stand of the German army.
E—The major part of General von Herringen's army has been thrust across the French border by the French offensive.

DUBOIS CITIZENS GREET MR. PINCHOT

Voters Heartily Applaud His Statements in Big Meeting

HE WILL FIGHT TO THE FINISH

Candidate Visits Railroad Shops and Factories and is Given an Encouraging Reception—Was a Guest of Evangelist Stough at the Tabernacle—Now Touring Elk and McKean Counties.

After a strenuous day of nearly 100 miles in an auto, and making speeches in a dozen towns, Clifford Pinchot, the Washington party candidate for United States senator, reached Dubois last evening, where a mass meeting was held in front of the Commercial hotel.

Mr. Pinchot, with the same snap and vim that has accompanied him throughout all his campaign, spoke to a crowd of good size and was greeted with rounds of applause, when he told them that he was in the fight to down the Peorose gang and that he was proud of having been "tired" by Taft for sticking to the right.

Brimbaugh's shifty answer to the North American's offer to support him if he would declare against Peorose and Peoroseism, as described by Mr. Pinchot, was an attempt to create a good impression by saying nothing.

Mr. Pinchot said Brimbaugh will never be elected governor of this state. "We do not want a man as governor who is afraid," he said. Brimbaugh had his last chance to take a square-cut stand on the greatest issue in politics in this state when the North American asked him to make known his attitude on Peorose.

STATE COLLEGE OPENS FOR WINTER TERM

State College, Sept. 17.—The sixty-sixth year of the Pennsylvania State college opened this week with an attendance which will reach 3,250 in all courses. The number has quadrupled in seven years. The freshman class has been limited to 600 owing to the lack of building accommodations, more than 200 applications having been rejected. With the completion of the eight new buildings authorized by the last session of the legislature this restriction will not be necessary.

Fifty new teachers have been added to the faculty, the most prominent being Dr. Raper, of Columbia university, professor of education; Dr. Kains, of Michigan Agricultural college, professor of horticulture; Professor Ernest, of Colorado Teachers' college, professor of industrial art; and Professor Marshall, of Ohio Wesleyan university, professor of public speaking. Albert O. Vorse, of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, has been made College News editor and instructor in journalistic writing.

FIREHOUSE PROBLEM NOT YET SOLVED

One Bid of $3000 Received by Borough Council Last Evening

COMMITTEE TO REDUCE COST

Borough council met last evening, with ten members present. The first business taken up was the report of Engineer E. W. Hess on the sidewalk grade on West Fourth street, where there had been a complaint made by some of the residents of the street in regard to the grading. Mr. Hess reported the grade of the sidewalk alright, but recommended the excavating of the street for 100 feet, starting 15 feet south of the alley near the Joe Chase property, a one-foot cut to be made at the highest point.

The street commissioner reported the cost of street work done in the last five weeks at $554.32.

The borough authorities were authorized to approve the South Second street paving, if the same was found to be satisfactory after being inspected by the borough engineer and the utilities committee.

The finance committee was directed to advertise for bids for the building of the Second and Fourth ward hose houses.

The engineer's grade for the sidewalk and steps on Pine streets were adopted on the recommendation of the utilities committee.

George T. Underwood bid $3000 for the building of each hose house in the Second and Fourth wards. A committee consisting of Burgess Callahan, Messrs. Thorn, Witherow and Wrigley, were appointed to take up the matter with Mr. Underwood to see if changes could be made to reduce the cost.

Notices to build sidewalks in front of their properties on Cemetery hill were served on D. W. Anderson and Leslie Antis, on account of complaints.

A petition with eighteen signers of the Fourth ward was presented to the council, asking that C. G. Wilson be appointed to fill the seat in council made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Buck. The two other councilmen from the Fourth ward were commissioned to nominate a member at the next meeting.

Emperor Franz Josef Declares That Never Before Has He Felt So Grieved Over a Decision of Such Gravity—His Armies, Although Aided by the Germans, Are Being Whipped in All Sections of the Country—Russians Capture Many Guns and 5000 German Prisoners.

(By International News Service.)
London, Sept. 17.—The Serbian army which invaded Austria was recalled for "strategic reasons," according to a dispatch from Nish to the Serbian legation here.

Russians Pursue Austrians.
Petrograd, Sept. 17.—The following summary of the recent fighting in Galicia from the Russian point of view has been made public in Petrograd through semi-official channels.

"Russian troops are pursuing the Austrians with energy, and the defeat of the enemy continues. Certain Austrian army corps have been virtually annihilated. Russian forces have passed the River San."

The eastern Russian advance guard is approaching Przemysl. The rapidity with which military operations are being conducted has made it impossible to determine accurately the losses of the enemy.

"On the River Vistula, Russian troops have taken possession of an accumulation of material for bridge building."

Victory Over Germans.
"The desperate efforts of German troops to save Austria's army from utter rout should be recorded. The active participation of German army corps in the fighting has been reported at several different places along the Austrian front, as, for instance, at Turobine. The Russians captured 36 pieces of long range German artillery, in addition to some 5000 German prisoners. At other places on the front several dozen large German guns, many of which had been produced in Austria, have been captured."

England Apologizes for Carden's Vicious Criticism

(By International News Service.)
Washington, Sept. 17.—Six transports have been ordered to Vera Cruz to bring the American troops back home.

Great Britain has apologized for Sir Leonel Carden's interview criticizing President Wilson's handling of the Mexican situation.

In an interview Sir Leonel Carden said:

"It is a desperate shame that the United States has seen fit to abandon the decent people of Mexico when they most need help. I do not know the reason for this, but it would seem that President Wilson had been misinformed in some matters and that if another side of the situation has been brought to his attention he has not seen fit to listen to anything that contradicts those who have told him that the country has been pacified."

M'Cormick Now Goes on Washington Party Ticket

(By International News Service.)
Harrisburg, Sept. 17.—Without conditions of any kind, the state committee of the Washington party yesterday placed on its party ticket the name of Vance C. McCormick, Democratic candidate for the governorship, in order that every vote cast this fall, against the continuation of Penrose rule in the state affairs may be made effective.

McCormick will be the one and Penrose candidate pitted against Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh, the Penrose selection on the Republican ticket, who holds that it would be treacherous for him to declare against Penroseism.

McCormick goes on the Washington party ticket through the withdrawal of Dr. William Draper Lewis, nominated by the Progressives at the primaries, who urged strongly upon the state committee the action taken yesterday.

WILL PENNANT WINNERS REACH THE 600 MARK?

(By International News Service)
New York, Sept. 17. The team that wins the National league pennant this year will have to play at a 650 to 700 clip from now on or it will establish a precedent in the old league—winning at a pennant with a percentage under the 600 mark.

This trick never has been turned in the National league, and turned only once in the American. The narrowest escape for the National league came in 1906 when the Brooklyn Dodgers, by winning the last game of the season, breezed under the wire with .503. In 1908 the Tigers, in the American league, won the pennant with a standing of .588, just four points ahead of the second place Naps.

The comparative records of the American and National leagues since the organization of the American in 1900 show that the National league, which have won the pennant usually have done so by a fairly comfortable margin. Four times in 14 years the winning team has slipped over the .700 mark, the best figure being that of 1905 made by the Chicago Cubs in 1906 when they won 116 out of 152 games.

The best figures compiled in the American league was set by the Boston Red Sox, in 1912. The nearest approach to this mark was made by the Athletics in 1907 when they turned in a .589 average. It seems unlikely that the Athletics will beat the .601 mark this year.

A glance at the 14 year record for both teams will show that in each organization only four teams have split the honors. The Dodgers won in the National in 1900, the Pirates in 1901, 1902, 1903, and 1904, the Giants in 1904, 1905, 1911, 1912 and 1913, and the Cubs in 1906, 1907, 1908 and 1909. In the American the Chicago White Sox won in 1906, 1907 and 1908, the Athletics in 1902, 1903 and 1904, 1910 and 1913, the Boston Red Sox in 1905, 1906 and 1912 and the Detroit Tigers in 1907, 1908 and 1909.

Will Play Curwensville.

The Clearfield High School football team will play the first game of the season with Curwensville High New York critics. It will be played at the 1:30 p.m. at Curwensville, Pa. The regular team for Clearfield, Bertha Kriegerhoff, John the screen has not yet been chosen. Kriegerhoff, Nellie McHenry, Kendall but the number of boys who are Watson and Caroline Leonard, seats playing this year and the efficiency now in play.

of their coach the team promises to be one of the best that Clearfield has ever had. The success of school athletics depends largely upon the patronage given them by the students and the people of town. It very much turns out for the first year and show how you appreciate the efforts made by the players.

"A Pair of Sixes"

It is not often that a pair of sixes wins the "big pot" but it has proved so in the case of Edward Peoples now fame of the title, which will be seen at his poem house at 745 Broadway night. It has been a big for nearly a year in New York in the Langens theatre, and has now started on a long run in Chicago. WAGE REDUCTION IS DENIED BY THE PENNSY

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, during the past few days, has been subjected to a great deal of criticism on account of its refusal to reduce wages. The company has been accused of being selfish and of not caring for the interests of its employees. The company has been accused of being a monopoly and of using its power to oppress its employees. The company has been accused of being a trust and of using its power to control the economy. The company has been accused of being a monopoly and of using its power to oppress its employees. The company has been accused of being a trust and of using its power to control the economy. The company has been accused of being a monopoly and of using its power to oppress its employees. The company has been accused of being a trust and of using its power to control the economy.

There is not likely to be any reduction along the lines of the various railroads. This will be determined by the following statement given out from the Philadelphia office of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. It is a statement which is a part of the reference program planned by the company. There is a good prospect of $3,000,000 being added to the company's income for carrying the mails and this will remove one grievance which the railroads have long complained about especially since the inauguration of one parcel post. This amounts to about $12 per annum per mile of road and it is a great deal more than is received by the railroads. The railroads will have gained a substantial point. As to the increased rates, lines operating in the territory between the Ohio river and the Mississippi river have already been allowed an increase of 5 per cent. This is an existing wage and efforts are being made to extend the zone over which the increase may be applied. In Washington the opinion seems to prevail that the several states will adopt an attitude of leniency toward the railroads. This was expressed in the opinion of the interstate commerce commission in its rate decision. And again in reply made yesterday by President Wilson to the railroad presidents who waited upon him on Wednesday, he says he is confident that there will be earnest and active co-operation to aid the railroads to increase their income.

Phenomenal Development. No railroad anywhere appears to have any more rapid strides than the Canadian Pacific which a brief twenty years back was served quite adequately by 100 locomotives, where as, according to a report just issued, 2,248 are required at this time to handle the road's immense traffic. Likewise, makes use of 2,171 dining and sleeping cars and coaches, together with 88,000 freight cars of all classes. The cost of operating the big system during the last fiscal year was $87,358,896, of which transportation expenses aggregated $42,500,280, maintenance of equipment $16,417,247 and maintenance of structure $16,438,551.

BY TAD WAR MAPS FOR PROGRESS READERS

Valuable Aids to Understanding of European Situation

A HANDSOME PIECE OF WORK

With These Maps the Public Can Tell at a Glance the Location of the Cities and Towns Where the Fighting Nations are Struggling for supremacy—How Maps May be Procured.

In keeping with its determination to give the readers of the Progress the latest and best news of the great European war, the management of this paper has decided to distribute to the public at a nominal cost to the people an official map of the territory in which the big armies of the warring powers are fighting. With the aid of this map the citizen can trace minutely the movements of the armies and discover the number of battles as reported day by day in the columns of the Progress. This map, in large, is pointed to five colors, with the names and locations of the towns and cities, mountains, rivers and other data necessary to a complete understanding of the situation in the war zone. The map was originally made in Europe by the war process, at once expensive and complete, and has been reproduced in this country at a nominal cost. The type is clear and the photos caught by the man who is after information regarding the war are plainly marked. On the back of this map is to be found the latest and most authentic information regarding the nations now engaged in the conflict.

The Progress has been able to procure a number of these maps for distribution to those who wish to have an intelligent conception of the great events which are happening in Europe. The number of these maps the reader can get the copies from another page of this paper and present it, with ten cents, at the counter of the business office of the Progress and one of the maps will be handed to him. As the number of copies of the map which the Progress was able to get is limited it will be well for those who wish copies to call early.

The maps will be sent by mail either in town or out of town for 12 cents in coin, stamps or money order. They are really the most valuable maps of Europe that are in existence, and will prove a source of profit to those who wish to learn more than they know of the countries across the sea. If you wish to keep posted on the movements of the immense armies in the greatest conflict the world has ever known, get one of these maps at once.

Friends are invited. The many friends of Walter and Anne Doolin, throughout are cordially invited to attend a bachelorette party at Grampian, September 18, in honor of their 25th year of married life. Every one who has a social wish for them will be made welcome.

The Last Shot

By
FREDERICK PALMER

(Copyright, 1914, by Charles Scribner's Sons)

"Very true, indeed. Perhaps I had that partly in mind in making you vice-chief of staff," responded the premier.

"Then it all goes back to the public—that enormous body of humanity out there?" He swung the paper handle around with outstretched arm toward the walls of the room. "To public opinion—as does everything else in this age—to the people—our masters, your and mine? For no man can stand against them when they say no or yes."

"You know the keys to play on thought," remarked Westering with a complimentary smile. "No one knows quite so well."

"And you are sure—sure we can win?" the premier asked with a long, tense look at Westering, who was steady under the scrutiny.

"Absolutely," he answered. "Five millions against three! His mathematics, or our courage and skill are not equal to theirs. Absolutely! We have the power, why not use it? We do not live in a dream age!"

"Stake My Life!" He Cried Hoarsely.

"From a sudden, unthinking exertion of his strength the knife which had been the recipient of his emotions snapped in two. Rather carefully the premier laid the pieces on the table before he rose and turned to Westering, his decision made."

"If the people respond with the war, then it is war," he said. "I take you at your word that you will win."

"A condition!" Westering announced. "From the moment war begins the army is master of all intelligence, all communication, all resources. Everything we require goes into the crucible!"

"And the press—the mischievous, greedy, but very useful press?" asked the premier.

"It also shall serve; also obey. No lists of killed and wounded shall be given out until I am ready. The public must know nothing except what I choose to tell. I act for the people and the nation."

"That is agreed," said the premier. "For these terrible weeks every nerve and muscle of the nation is at your service to win for the nation. In three or four days I shall know if the public rises to the call. If not—" He shook his head.

"While all the information given out is provocative to our people, you will declare you hope that war may be averted," Westering continued. "This will screen our purpose. Finally, on top of public enthusiasm will come the word that the brass have fired the first shot as they must when a cross the frontier. That they have been killing our soldiers. This will make the racial spirit of every man respond. Having decided for war, every plan is worthy that helps to victory."

"... seems headish!" exclaimed the premier in answer to a thought edging in the powerful current of his brain. "Fleishish with calculation, but merciful, as you say."

"A terrible campaign! A ready machine taking the road!" Westering declared. "Less suffering than if we went to war carelessly for a long campaign—can it be allowed sentiment to interfere with intellect?"

"I like your energy, your will!" said the premier admiringly. "And about the declaration of war? We shall time that to your purpose."

"Declarations of war before striking by nations taking the aggressive, are a disadvantage," Westering explained. "They are going out of practice. Witness the examples of Japan against Russia and the Balkan allies against Turkey. In these days declarations are not necessary as a warning of what is going to happen. They belong to the complete of fencers."

"Yes, exactly. The dictator is at war and the ambassador's passport will be prepared and the wire that lighting has begun will release them," agreed the premier.

"Yet if we did lose! If when I had given you all your plans were wrong! If our army were broken in pieces on the frontier and then the nation, kept in ignorance of events, learned the truth—the premier enunciated slowly and pointedly while he looked at Westering—"that is the end for us both. You would hardly want to return to the capital to face public wrath!"

"We must win though we lose a million men!" he answered. "I stake my life!" he cried hoarsely, striking his fist on the table.

"You stake your life!" repeated the premier with slow emphasis.

"I do!" said Westering. "Yes, my life. We cannot fail!"

"Then it will be war. If the people want it!" said the premier. "I shall not resist their desire!" he added in his official manner, at peace with his conscience.

Partow was a great brain set on an enormous body. Partow's eyes had the fire of youth at sixty-five, but the pendulous flesh of his cheeks was pasty. Jealousy and faction had endeavored for years to remove him from his position at the head of the army on account of age. New governments decided as they came in that he must go, and they went out with him still in the saddle.

Let officers apply themselves with conspicuous energy and they head from a general Partow; let officers only keep step and free of court martial, and they head from a merciless taskmaster. Peculiarly human, peculiarly dictatorial, dynamic, and inscrutable was Partow, who never asked any one under him to work harder than himself.

Partow appeared in the presence of Jove shortly after eight o'clock the next morning after he left La Tite. Jove rolled his big head on his short neck in a nod and said:

"Late!"

"The train was late, sir," Lanstron replied, "and I have some news about our thousandth chance."

"Hm-m! What is it?" asked Partow. When Lanstron had told his story, Partow worked his lips in a way he had if he were struck by a passing reflection which might or might not have a connection with the subject in hand.

"Strange about her when you consider who her parents were!" he said. "But you never know. Hm-m! Why don't you sit down, young man?"

"The way that the Grays gave out our dispatch convinces me of their intentions," Partow said. "Their people are rising to it and ours are rising in answer. The Grays have been transferring regiments from distant provinces to their frontier because they will fight better in an invasion. We are transferring home regiments to our frontier because they will fight for their own property. By Thursday you will find that open mobilization on both sides has begun."

"My department is ready," said Lanstron, "all except your decision about conscription."

"A troublesome point," responded Partow. "I have procrastinated because two definite plans were fully worked out. It is a matter of choice between them: either publicity or complete secrecy. You know I am no believer in riding two horses at once. My mind is about made up; but let me hear your side again. Sometimes I get conviction by probing another man's."

Lanstron was at his best, for his own conviction was intense.

"Of course they will go in for secrecy; but our case is different," he began.

Partow settled himself to listen with the gift of the organizer who draws from his informant the brevity of essentials.

"I should take the people into our confidence," Lanstron proceeded. "I should make them feel that we were one family fighting for all we hold dear against the invader. If our losses are heavy, if we have a setback, then the inspiration of the heroism of those who have fallen and the danger of their own homes feeling the foot of the invader next will impel the living to greater sacrifices. For the Grays are in the wrong. The moral and the legal right is with us."

"And the duty of men like you and me, chosen for the purpose," said Partow, "is worthy to direct the courage that goes with moral right. The overt act of war must come from them by violating our frontier, not in the African jungle but here. Even when the burglar fingers the window-sash we shall not fire—no, not until he enters our house. When he does, you would have a message go out to our people that will set them quivering with indignation!"

"Yes, and I would let the names of our soldiers who fall first be known and how they fell, their backs to their frontier homes and their faces to the foe."

"Our very liberality in giving news will help us to cover the military secrets which we desire to preserve," Partow said, with slow emphasis. "We shall hold back what we please, content of the people's trust. Good policy that, yes! But enough! Your orders are ready, in detail, I believe. You have nothing to add?"

"No, sir, nothing; at least, not until war begins."

"Very well. We shall have the orders issued at a proper moment," concluded Partow. "And Westering is going to bed," he proceeded after a thoughtful pause, "that a man is reader to die fighting to hold his own household than fighting to take another man's. War is not yet solely an affair of machinery and numbers. The human element is still uppermost. Give me your hand—no, not that one, not the one you shake hands with—the one wounded in action!"

Partow inclosed the stiffened fingers in his own with something of the caress which an old bear that is in very good humor might give to a promising cub.

"I have planned, planned, planned for this time. The world shall soon know as the elements of it go on the crucible test, whether it is well done or not. I want to live to see the day when the last charge made against our trenches is beaten back. Then they may throw this old body onto the rubbish heap as soon as they please—it is a fat, unwieldy behemoth of an old body!"

"No, no, it isn't!" Lanstron objected hotly. "He was seeing only what most people saw after talking with Partow for a few minutes, his fine, intelligent eyes and beautiful forehead."

"All that I wanted of the body was to feed my brain," Partow continued, heedless of the interruption. "I have watched my mind as a navigator watches a barometer. I have been ready at the first sign that it was losing its grip to give up. Yet I have felt that my body would go on feeding my brain and that to the last moment of consciousness, when suddenly the body collapses, I should have self-possession and energy of mind. Under the coming strain the shock may come, as a cord snaps. At that instant my successor will take up my work where I leave it off."

"The old fogey who has aimed to join experience to youth chooses youth. You took your medicine without grumbling in the disagreeable but vitally important position of chief of intelligence. Now you—there, don't tremble with stage fright!" For Lanstron's hand was quivering in Partow's grasp, while his face was that of a man stunned.

"You are to be at the right hand of this old body," continued Partow. "You are to go with me to the front, to sleep in the room next to mine; to be always at my side, and, finally, you are to promise that if ever the old body fails in its duty to the mind, if ever you see that I am not standing up to the strain, you are to say so to me and I give you my word that I shall let you take charge."

Lanstron was too stunned to speak for a moment. The arrangement seemed a hideous joke; a refinement of cruelty, inconceivable. It was expecting him to tell Ardas that he was old and to take the weight of the world off the giant's shoulders.

"Have you lost your patriotism?" demanded Partow. "Are you afraid? Afraid to tell me the truth? Afraid of duty? Afraid in your youth of the burden that I bear in age?"

His fingers closed in on Lanstron's with such force that the grip was painful.

"Promise!" he commanded.

"I promise!" Lanstron said with a throb.

"That's it! That's the way! That's the kind of soldier I like," Partow declared with change of tone, and he rose from his chair with a spring that was a delight to Lanstron in its proof of the physical vigor so stoutly denied.

"We have a lot to say to each other today," he added; "but first I am going to show you the whole bag of tricks."

His arm crooked in Lanstron's, they went along the main corridor of the staff office and entered a vault having a single chair and a small table in the center and lined by sections of numbered pigeonholes, each with a combination lock. At the base of one section was a small safe. It was not the first time that Lanstron had been in this vault. He had the combination of two of the sections of pigeonholes, aerostatics and intelligence. The rest belonged to other divisions.

"The safe is my own, as you know. No one opens it; no one knows what is in it but me," said Partow, taking from it an envelope and a manuscript, which he laid on the table. "There you have all that is in my brain—the whole plan. The envelope contains the combinations of all the pigeonholes. If you wish to look up any details"

"Thank you!" Lanstron half-whispered. It was all as could think of to say.

"And you will find that there is more than you thought, perhaps; the reason why I have fought hard to remain chief of staff, why—" Partow continued in a voice that had the sepulchral uncanniness of a threat long nursed now breaking free of the bondage of years within the sound-proof walls. "But—" he broke off suddenly as if he distrusted even the security of the vault. "Yes it is all there—my life's work, my dream, my ambition, my plan!"

Lanstron heard the lock slide in the door as Partow went out and he was alone with the army's secrets. As he read Partow's first handwriting many parts fell together, many lines on a chessboard grew clear. His breath came faster, he bent closer over the table, he turned back pages to go over them again. Every sentence dropped home in his mind like a bolt to a socket. Precisions of the passage of time, he did not heed the door open or realize Partow's presence until he felt Partow's hand on his shoulder.

September 17, 1914.

Good evening! Nature sets you a good example by smiling brightly.

Cider mills ought to be working overtime these days.

Next year should see some of the more important alleys paved.

Possibly the Germans fight best after they have been given a good drubbing.

A Mitchell Palmer actually has presidential ambitions. Think of that ye old line Democrats.

It might pay some of the citizens of Clearfield to go to DuBois and listen to Evangelist Slough's sermons.

Clearfield merchants can fight the mail order houses by using the advertising columns of Clearfield's leading daily newspaper—The Progress.

Football season will open on Saturday of this week, and after we hope that the war in Europe will not curtail the supply of amica and sticking plaster.

The hunting season opens on October fifteenth and by that time it is probable that the big city hunters will all have established themselves and their dogs in the woods of this county.

WHERE SYMPATHY BELONGS

American newspapers have been accused of expressing sympathy for the allies in this big war. Probably the newspapers express the views of the American people. It is plain that the American people do not have sympathy for Austria. Austria would not have been a part of the war if it had not been backed by Germany. If the Kaiser had told Francis Joseph not to make unwarranted demands on Serbia, Austria would not have started the conflagration which has spread all over Europe. However, no sympathy is wasted on Serbia; no excessive sympathy is extended to England and France. All of the nations are fighting because they hope to increase their territorial possessions, not because they believe they are in the right.

It is to families of the men who are blindly obeying the orders of their leaders and who are being slaughtered on the field of battle that the American people extend the sympathy. To the widows and orphans who must suffer most from the war. To the little children deprived of a father's love and protection. These are the ones who deserve sympathy, not the nations at arms. These rulers themselves do not place themselves on the danger line. They are careful of their own persons, but are ready to send their subjects to slaughter and if they were mine-miners to be knocked down without further thought as the part of their rulers.

There is hope that this will be the last great war the world will ever witness. The lessons it will teach should sink deep into the hearts of all nations until the mere mention of militarism will prove hateful and until rulers shall be deprived of the power to sacrifice their subjects with us. Little companionship of confidence as they would shoot down the game of the forest. And let us hope that the ruler, whoever he may be, who is responsible for bringing on this horrible war will be executed as a murderer and his crime against civilization be written down in history with the evil deeds of men of the dark ages.

WHERE IS THE GAME?

Secretary Kalbfus, of the state game commission, states that game of all kinds is plentiful in this state. Will the secretary please inform some six thousand hunters in Clearfield county where this game is to be found? There are more deer in the mountains now than there were a year ago, but where are the pheasants, quail and squirrels? What did the game commission do last winter to protect the birds and animals from perishing from hunger?

The state game commission has something like three hundred thousand dollars at its command. This money, or a goodly part of it, is supposed to be used in propagating and protecting game of all kinds. A large amount of this money must be used to pay salaries of game wardens who do not make any effort to protect game. Some of the money goes toward printing letters to the press, informing—erroneously—the hunters in big cities that game is plentiful and inviting them to camp for the entire season in the woods and mountains—and not to forget their dogs.

Hunters who live in the counties of the state know that there is not the quantity of game in the woods and fields which the state game commission mentions. No effort has been made to replace the pheasants which have been killed in past years by the pot hunters from Pittsburgh and the other big cities. No effort has been made to arrest and punish these pot hunters and others who violate the law. But the state game commission appears to have plenty of money with which to carry on expensive lawsuits in the court in the prosecution of hunters who inadvertently kill a deer the horns of which are not long enough to carry a bundle of hay upon them.

Real hunters would like to see the game commission make the attempt to propagate game birds and animals. There are thousands of acres of land in Clearfield county on which game of all kinds ought to abound, but upon which not a bird or beast is to be found. Unless a hunter is able to spend at least a week in the woods he may return home empty handed. It is only the professional hunter and the pot hunter—and the two are cousins—who is able to bag game, and most of these take into the woods and use dogs without being molested by the game wardens. If the game commission really wants to give all classes of hunters a chance it will spend some of its money in propagating and protecting game in and out of season.

War Prices.

When Jones' motor car broke down outside of Quogue, L. I., St. Simons on his aerial nag came slowly to his aid.
 "Just haul me into town," said Jones, "and if you do it quick I'll come across with seven bucks, and never make a kick."
 "I shan't haul no one," St. replied, "for seven bucks no more."
 "I'll hev to charge ye thirty, on account of this here war."

When Colonel Green fell in the bay he raised a mighty shout
 To One-Eyed Dawson on the shore to come and pull him out.
 "I cannot swim!" the Colonel yelled.
 "Come help me, or I'll drown."
 And when ye get me safe on land you get ten dollars down.
 "My price," said One-Eyed nervously, "for take," talks to share
 Has gone to eighteen dollars on account of all this war."

TWENTY YEARS HENCE

From the files of Progress, 1934.

Former State Senator A. H. Woodward and former Mayor Leslie Stewart will hunt moose in Maine this winter.

The public library, erected in 1922 on the site of the old county jail, received a large consignment of books this week.

Home-grown watermelons are now in the market, the finest ones coming from the truck patch of H. A. Kennedy, on the West Side.

W. Clark Boyer expects to have his new opera house on Fourteenth street open for the season about the first of November.

The great improvement made to the hillside above Bigler avenue is favorably commented upon by travelers on the railroads entering town. Old citizens who remember what an eyesore that hill was twenty years ago say that they did not believe that such a great change for the better could have been made.

A man who gave his first name as William, claiming to have been emperor of Germany before the big war of 1914, was in town yesterday looking for a good location for a pretzel factory.

Governor James H. Kelley passed through here last evening on his way to Pittsburgh to attend a banquet.

Associate Justice H. B. Hartswick, of the state superior court, will address the Equal Suffrage league of this place tomorrow night.

TODARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair-Restorer," avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not stylish, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so easily. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

INDEPENDENTS THROUGHOUT STATE TURNING TO GIFFORD PINCHOT

Republicans Who Want a Protective Tariff and at Same Time
Are Against Penrose and His Record of Corruption
and Servility to Standard Oil and Other Special
Privilege Will Vote for Washington Party Man

In spite of the enormous sums of money being spent in this campaign by the liquor interests and the rich groups of corporation men to elect Penrose it is becoming more and more evident that the senior senator cannot be returned to Washington.

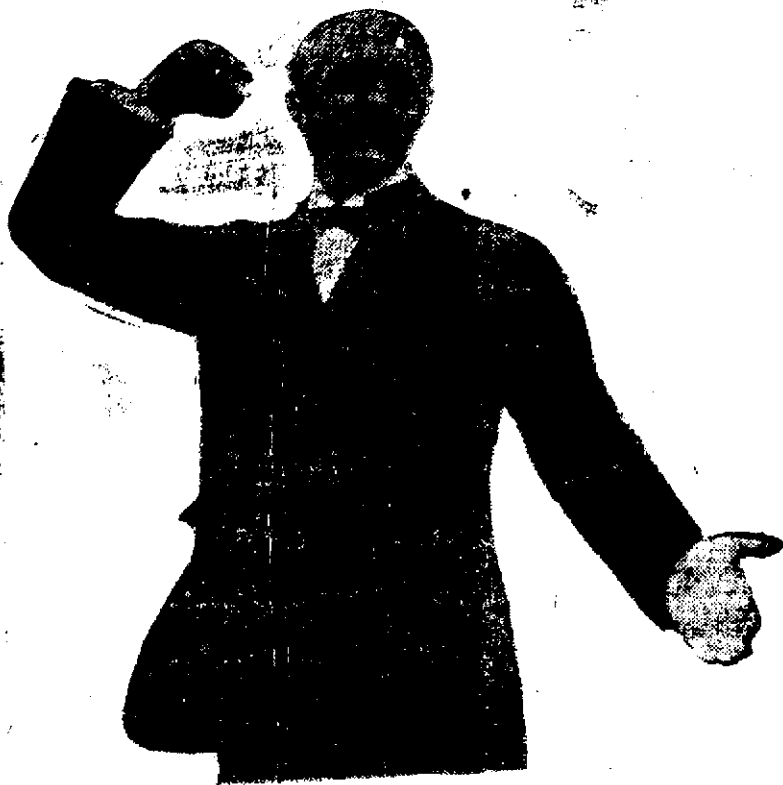

Reports from every part of the state show that the people are making up their minds to the fact that when they vote for Gifford Pinchot, the Washington party candidate, they not only get a protective tariff man, but they get a representative at Washington who will stand clean and firm for the common good.

Penrose is being publicly rebuked. At county fairs he has been given the cold shoulder; at meetings called to hear him he has been listened to with scant attention. He has failed utterly to answer the serious charges against him. Even his managers are in despair at the uncanny growth of anti-Penrose sentiment throughout the length and breadth of Pennsylvania. More serious than anything else in the near growing and oft repeated declarations of the hosts of independent Republicans that the time has come to put the party into clean hands.

They Want a Clean Man.

The tariff that Penrose boasts of was so expensive that it disgusted the people. What kind of tariff maker is that arouses distrust even among his own followers by his excesses.

Independent Republicans know this and are growing more and more convinced that Penrose is a mistake.

Some of the significant remarks made at recent county fairs where Penrose has spoken would discourage his managers could they hear them.

The burden of the comment throughout the state at the present time is that Penrose is a legacy from the Quay machine. He was put into office by Quay, he was kept there during the time when the people could not vote direct for senators through the machinations and deals of the politicians.

He has been a monstrous failure, according to the popular concept of what a senator should be.

The protective tariff men in this state, the independents who want Pennsylvania to be represented by a high type of statesman have pretty well made up their minds now whom they will select.

By no manner of means does Penrose measure up.

Gifford Pinchot, from every angle is the logical man.

SAY PENROSE FULLY EARNED $25,000 STANDARD OIL CHECK

Philadelphia, September 15.—Penrose machine followers who are working for the Senator here are indignant that anybody should question Penrose's acceptance of $25,000 from Standard Oil after the way the Senator worked for that company during his public career.

The Penrose workers want the Senator to acknowledge publicly that he got the money from Standard Oil and that he fully earned it.

It was recalled here that on February 20th, 1900, as shown by letters passing between Penrose and Standard Oil officials, the Senator took the confidential report of the United States Industrial Commission which was investigating Standard Oil and secretly sent it to that company.

The United States Industrial Commission was a body appointed principally to investigate Standard Oil which was regarded as a dangerous trust.

Acted as Their Errand Boy.
The fact that Senator Penrose as a member of this commission took this report from the files and sent it to the Standard Oil even before it was sent to Congress, was of the utmost value to the company. It allowed Standard Oil to actually dominate the Commission and to prevent the Government from taking any steps against them.

On February 21st, 1900, John D. Archbold, the Vice President of Standard Oil, acknowledged the receipt of the report which Penrose sent him in a letter which read as follows:

"26 Broadway, N. Y., February 21, 1900.

"Hon. Boies Penrose,
"Senate Chamber,
"Washington, D. C.

"My Dear Senator:

"I have your kind note of yesterday with enclosure, which latter I beg to return herewith. We think the report is so fair that we will not undertake to suggest any changes. With many thanks, I am,

Very truly yours,

(Signed) "JNO. D. ARCHBOLD."

Standard Oil got everything they wanted from Penrose.

"Why wouldn't Standard Oil give $25,000 to Penrose?" asked the political machine workers here. "Didn't he earn it by saving the Standard Oil when the trust was in danger?"

Restocking Forest Streams.

The restocking of national forest streams in all states where such forests are situated, including those now being acquired in the White mountains and the southern Appalachians, will be given attention as rapidly as supplies of fish fry become available for planting purposes. The forest service is admirably organized to carry on work of this kind, and does so with practically no interference with regular activities since the fish must be handled with the utmost haste and frequently during the late evening or early morning hours. The production of the existing federal and state fish hatcheries is hardly adequate to meet all demands, however, and therefore the work has to be done in installments.

His Motto.

"And what is your favorite motto?" asked the reporter who was interviewing the candidate for congress. "Put yourself in his place," replied the candidate.

Positively Unreasonable.

French servant (to marketman)—"What? Ten francs for a chicken? Are you mad? Why, that's equal to the price I've been charging my mistress for the fowl!"—Illustration.

REPUBLICANS SAY PENROSE IS MENACE TO THEIR PARTY

Public Ledger of Philadelphia,
G. O. P. Organ, Calls on De-
cent Republicans to Save
Party by Defeating Boss

Philadelphia, Sept. 15.—Decent Republicans in Pennsylvania are calling on their party associates to defeat Penrose in order to bring back the party to the ideals of Lincoln. They point out that with Penrose in the saddle, Pennsylvania can get nothing at Washington. They declare that any protective tariff endorsed by him will arouse country wide suspicion and distrust. They are backing Gifford Pinchot who stands on a strong protective platform.

They declare that Penrose is responsible for the present Democratic tariff because he and his associates so broke faith with the people on the Payne Aldrich tariff bill that the party was repudiated.

Says Penroseism is Fatal.

The Public Ledger of this city, one of the staunchest of the Republican papers, foresees what evil effects the attempt to re-elect Penrose would bring to the party in this state.

In a clarion call to the Republicans of Pennsylvania it declared that Penrose was a menace to the National Republicanism and if the party was to live and regain popular confidence, Penrose must be defeated.

The editorial from the Public Ledger is as follows:

Ledger Calls Him Menace.

PENROSE A MENACE TO NATIONAL REPUBLICANISM

The Republican party does not begin nor does it end in Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvania electorate in the selection of a nominee for the United States Senate is expected to have due regard for the exigencies of the party throughout the Union. It must begin the rehabilitation of Republicanism nationally by tangible evidence of complete repudiation of those elements which have dragged the party into unpopularity and burdened it with the cause of discreditable leadership.

Republicans in other States cannot understand the peculiarities of politics in this State. The test of the new spirit in Republicanism will be, to them, simply whether or not Mr. Penrose is the nominee of the party. No explanation of the why or wherefore of his nomination will answer Kansans who have at Republican candidates the charge that Penrose is of them and for them, that his right of leadership in the party has been indorsed by his own State. There will be no argument which Republican candidates in other States can make if confronted with a Penrose victory in Pennsylvania. The stain of Penroseism will stick to them; they will be unable to wipe it off. They will be forced to assume responsibility for a leadership which has been repudiated by the nation. The alliances which Mr. Penrose is able to make in Pennsylvania, other Republicans cannot make in other States. A fair wind for him means a foul wind for them.

The expectation of some manufacturers that equitable tariff rates can be restored by the nomination and election of Senator Penrose is fatuous. There is no surer way to perpetuate the opposition in power. If protection is to have a proper hearing in the United States, it will get that hearing without Penrose. But it will not get it with him. A Republican majority in Congress can only be obtained if it is certain that that majority will not be dominated by Penrose, that Penrose will not even be there. Penrose is a big Democratic asset in Pennsylvania which is Democracy's biggest asset everywhere else. Republican principles and Penrose cannot dominate the Government at one and the same time. If Republican principles are again to determine national policies, they must have some other interpreter than Penrose.

During his tour of Somerset county, Pinchot was approached by an old soldier at Somerset.

"I'm a Lincoln Republican," said the old man.

"Are you for Penrose?" asked Pinchot.

"No, sir; I'm for you and a protective tariff," he answered. "I know what kind of a man Abraham Lincoln was. He was always against such fellows as Penrose."

The Philadelphia Public Ledger, a Republican paper says: "The anti-Penrose movement within the Republican party is a sign of political health. For the past few years Republicanism in Pennsylvania has been suffering from a wasting disease, malignant, but not chronic, distressing but not necessarily fatal, serious but not incurable. It is Penroseism."

In Solon's Time.

During the time of Solon, the famous lawmaker, he secured the passage of a statute compelling every able-bodied adult man in the nation to give proof once a year that he was earning a decent living and was self-supporting. Somebody has written to us suggesting that this would not be a bad example for Uncle Sam to follow, since the class of those who have learned to live "gracefully in idleness" is constantly on the increase.—Christian Record.

LOST?

Before the first guns had thundered forth their message of European strife, America had begun to pay the penalty of fear and uncertainty. In one short week the quotations of 105 leading American securities had shrunk $696,967,261.00.

But it was not a shrinkage of American making. It was a result of the desire of European security holders to trade their securities for cash. Cash is a handy thing in war times.

War means ordinarily peaceful merchants shooting guns at normally peaceful farm hands; factory operatives busily engaged in sabering machinists; baker boys galloping madly about on horses which ought to be hauling bread.

Business and War have nothing in common. When war stalks abroad Business goes elsewhere, and Money is the boon companion of Business.

When Europe sold back to us millions of dollars of securities it was in an effort to obtain money with which to later purchase from us some of the things Europe must have. Europe is an old customer of ours, but she is expecting to buy now more largely than ever before, and her $300,000,000 income from globe-trotting Americans will probably be missing this coming year.

Meanwhile, Europe has been compelled to shut up her own shop. There are new faces looking at us across our counters and fingering our goods. Europe used to number them among her customers.

Let's straighten up the counters and dust off the shelves. It looks as if business was going to be brisk and we might as well be ready. And if necessary to hire extra help to look after trade, we'd better start looking around for it now.

WAR STORIES TOLD BY WOUNDED MAN

walk were assisted to alight. Whatever their pain, they disguised it by smiling, and several were smoking. Some had their head enveloped in bandages; other wore slings. Many of them walked with a limp, and several placed their arms around the necks of R. A. M. C. men, and were assisted to vehicles.

One man walked with the aid of a crutch, another had been hurt on the jaw, but he was smoking a pipe with great relish.

Here and there tunics were torn. In some cases they had been ripped open down the arms on the shoulder to permit the surgeons to attend to the wounds.

With expedition the officers whose injuries were not severe were placed in taxicabs, motor-cars, and private omnibuses.

Then the stretcher brigade turned its attention to the officers who remained in the "wards" on the train. Pillows and blankets were placed on the stretchers, and a procession filed up the platform and entered the train.

The first officer brought out was reading a newspaper and smoking a cigarette. The next man, too, was smoking. His injury was to the leg. A third had his knees drawn up. All except one were looking cheery.

Ambulance surgeons, wagons and buses were waiting, and one by one the wounded were placed on beds and driven to the hospital.

The R. A. M. C. and the Ambulance Corps were still engaged in tending the injured officers when a second train, plastered with red crosses, ran in at the adjoining platform.

Soon the soldiers were flocking out of the carriages. The first group to walk to the cars mostly wore slings.

There were bandaged heads, arms, and shoulders, but the soldiers themselves were in the best of spirits and jumped into the buses with the friskiness of schoolboys.

Some of the wounded however, were more seriously injured. One man lay on a stretcher, which was allowed to rest on the ground for some time, and a doctor examined him and felt his pulse.

Others, too weak to move much, were lifted from stretchers into vans, where they were made comfortable on mattresses and blankets, with soft pillows for their heads.

Rugs were wrapped around them, and so they made the journey to hospital with a minimum of inconvenience.

As a party of the wounded were being driven through Moorgate-street they were heartily cheered by a large crowd of business men.

The flower girls throw their bouquets at the soldiers.

PREDICTS END OF PENROSE MACHINE

Philadelphia, Sept. 15.—The voters of the state will clean out the Penrose machine at this election by putting McCormick in Harrisburg and at the same time clean out Penrose by electing Pinchot, declared A. Nevin Detrich, the Washington party state chairman here today.

Detrich in an interview declared that Brumbaugh was certain of defeat and that Pinchot would be Pennsylvania's next United States Senator.

"Do you expect the Democratic party to place any Washington party men on their ticket?" he was asked.

"I am not informed as to the intentions or expectations of the Democrats," said Detrich.

"Do you believe that the Washington party will be satisfied without a place on the Democratic ticket?"

"I believe that the Washington party of Pennsylvania is satisfied to conduct its campaign along the lines outlined from the beginning, namely, the over-

"I read his answer this morning to the offer of the North American to support him if he made clear his determination to end Penroseism in this state. He absolutely dodged the issue again, just as he has been doing ever since he conferred with Penrose before he announced his candidacy. He said absolutely nothing on the greatest political issue in this country. He can never be elected.

"I have nothing but contempt for a man who tries to worm his way into public office by concealing his stand on that of which the people are demanding knowledge. The withdrawal of William Draper Lewis in favor of Vance McCormick, makes it certain that this man is afraid he cannot be elected governor of this state."

The meeting was ably handled by Frank Hutton who acted as chairman and F. M. Timlin, chairman of Sandy township.

Mr. Pinchot was the first speaker of the evening, and was followed by J. B. Mayo, candidate for congress who held his audience well, and told them of the robberies in the state highway department, and of the stealing of the Republican nomination in Chicago in 1912.

After Mr. Mayo's address the chairman introduced Lex N. Mitchell, to the crowd and Mr. Mitchell was very favorably received. He is a candidate for congress at large, and is making great headway, due to his ability as a speaker.

At the close of the meeting Mr. Pinchot visited the tabernacle at the request of Dr. Henry Stough, who is conducting a series of remarkable revivals in DuBois. Mr. Pinchot was warmly received on every hand and shook hands with practically every person in reach.

He visited the railroad shops in DuBois this morning, and at several of the factories, and on every hand was received with the same enthusiasm as has been shown throughout his entire trip over Clearfield county.

The tour will extend today through the counties of Elk and McKean to the party to Smithport for the night.

throw of the corrupt political domination of Pennsylvania and securing of progressive legislation in the state and nation. The Washington party, in striving to gain these things, will neither ask nor expect reward beyond their accomplishments."

"Do you anticipate that many Washington party voters will support Brumbaugh instead of McCormick?"

"No. Brumbaugh is the proved an accepted candidate of the machine. No Progressive will vote for him. He must look for his votes from the ranks of those who are willing to accept the same allied leadership as he has accepted."

"How will fusion on the governorship affect the senatorial contest?"

"Pinchot is by all odds a stronger candidate than Palmer. On national issues Pennsylvanians have shown that they believe more largely in the things Pinchot stands for than in the things Palmer stands for. In making sure the defeat of Penrose the Republicans who oppose him as a moral issue and thousands of Democrats who see the hopelessness of Palmer's candidacy will vote for Pinchot and assure his election."

KALBFUS FAVORS CITY HUNTERS BY NEW RULING

County Treasurer Frank J. Harris, of Pittsburgh, and Dr. Joseph Kalbfus, secretary of the game commission of the state of Pennsylvania, are participants in a contention being watched by a little army of hunters in Allegheny county and elsewhere.

Last year, Treasurer Harris issued blank hunters' licenses to practically every justice of the peace in Allegheny county. This made it possible for the resident of the most remote township or borough to secure a license with as little delay and inconvenience as the man who lived in the city. This year, Dr. Kalbfus has taken the stand that all license must be sold at the county treasurer's office and that the justices of the peace cannot act as his agent. It is the county treasurer's intention to proceed under the same system as last year unless actually restrained by the state authorities.

Distributing the licenses among justices of the peace, in his belief of County Treasurer Harris, greatly increased the revenue on that source. He is of the opinion that had the average hunter been forced to go to the city in order to buy a dollar hunting license he either would have hunted without a license or not hunted at all.
